Ehrlichman guilty of conspiracy, perjury

By DON McLEOD

WASHINGTON (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman, once one of the ranking members of President Nixon's White House staff, was convicted Friday of conspiracy and perjury in the Ellsberg break-in case.

Ehrlichman, 49, Nixon's chief domestic adviser until he resigned in April, 1973, amid rising Watergate scandals, said after the verdict he had doubted all along he could get a fair trial in Washington and said he would appeal.

The verdict made Ehrlichman one of the most powerful government officials ever convicted of a crime. Interior Secretary Albert B. Fall went to jail for a year in 1931 in the Teapot Dome scandals.

OTHERS OF such high rank have been charged in the past but never convicted, including Nixon's former attorney general and re-election campaign manager, John N. Mitchell, and former commerce secretary and campaign fund-raiser Maurice Stans, who were acquitted by a jury in the Robert Vesco case in March.

Former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor for his testimony in the ITT case but was given a suspended sentence.

The jury convicted Ehrlichman, G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio R. Martinez of a civil rights charge of conspiring to enter the Beverly Hills, Calif., office of Dr. Lewis Fielding and examine his files on Daniel Ellsberg, the man who leaked the Pentagon papers.

This count carries a maximum prison sentence of 10 years. Ehrlichman also was convicted of three other counts, carrying a potential five years each, and was cleared of the fifth.

THIS LEAVES Ehrlichman subject to a possible total of 25 years sentence, although he is expected to receive somewhat less than that, when U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell passes sentence, set for July 31. The defendants remain free pending sentencing.

Ehrlichman still faces trial in September in the Watergate cover-up case, along with Mitchell, former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, former Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert Mardian and two others.

Liddy, Barker and Martinez, who were convicted last year in connection with the 1972 break-in at Democratic Party headquarters in Washington's Watergate complex, were charged only in the conspiracy count.

Ehrlichman, however, also was convicted of one count of lying to the FBI and two counts of committing perjury before the Watergate grand jury.

Outside the courthouse following the verdict, Ehrlichman said he had met with his lawyers and

Convicts to free 12 other prisoners—but not hostages

By DONALD SANDERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two armed convicts promised early today to release 12 fellow prisoners held in the basement of a federal courthouse.

Four civilians, including a woman, and three deputy U.S. marshals would remain as hostages in the cellblock as the two convicts sought to ransom the seven for freedom, a Justice Department spokesman said.

THE inmates had been bystanders caught in the marathon standoff that began Thursday afternoon. Officials have said they were not armed, and the two convicts have not described them as hostages.

The convicts, Frank

Gorham and Robert Jones, who also uses the name Otis D. Wilkerson, were permitting the prisoners to be released "as an act of good faith," said John Russell, spokesman for the Justice Department.

The 12 prisoners were confined to the cellblock area in the basement of the U.S. District Court house when the two made their dramatic bid for freedom by pulling a pistol on their U.S. marshal escorts.

Gorham and Jones have threatened to kill the hostages if police attempted to storm the cellblock area. They also threatened late Friday to behead one of the hostages with an axe if the authorities did not respond to their demand for safe passage out of the country.

Russell declined to comment on any aspect of the negotiations. The 12 prisoners, who were awaiting court appearances when the rebellion occurred, would be returned to "wherever they were incarcerated," said Russell.

Arthur Johnson of Landover, Md., said he talked with his son, an inmate who has not participated in the rebellion, and said his son feared for his life.

"He says that those two with the hostages have told everyone that if they go, everyone in there is going," said Johnson. "My boy says those others will either kill or be free — but they won't stay there."

A Justice Department spokesman declined to predict "one way or the other" when some kind of resolution would be reached. "Our lines of communication with the inmates are still open we remain hopeful," said the spokesman.

The spokesman added that no hostages had been harmed.

The siege involving hundreds of heavily armed officers began at 2 p.m. Thursday when one of the convicts produced a gun and he and a companion seized eight hostages in a basement cellblock. One of the eight, a deputy marshal, was released before dawn Friday.

"The hostages are mine ... the hostages are going to remain mine," Gorham, 25, said in a telephone conversation with a newsmen.

Atomic blackmail feared

Terrorists 'may go nuclear'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The latest weapon in the terrorist arsenal could be a homemade atomic bomb or enough nuclear material to spread deadly radiation, the chief of the State Office of Emergency Services (OES) said Friday.

Recent publicity has increased the chances of terrorists "going nuclear," said Robert Vickers, director of the OES. In a June 28 letter mailed to California police chiefs and county sheriffs, Vickers said threats of radioactive blackmail already have been received.

"No doubt the number will escalate in the immediate future," Vickers said in the letter.

Stolen radioactive substances would provide the raw material for terrorist blackmail, Vickers said. "I would like to think that they couldn't, and I'm not certain that they can, but I've heard of occasions where it has been pilfered," Vickers said.

"I think it would be pretty difficult, but not beyond the realm of possibility, with books they have in libraries these days, they could put together something that could be detonated," Vickers said.

"Even if it wasn't very destructive in itself, it would probably be a 'dirty' bomb and that would be more dangerous in itself," Vickers added.

A "dirty" atomic bomb is one that spreads much deadly radiation when it is detonated.

Mailing radioactive material, or threatening to release it in some way that could expose large numbers of persons to radiation, would be other possible tactics of terrorists, Vickers said.

Vickers said he was reluctant to talk about possible specific terrorist uses of radioactive materials because he didn't want to give them any ideas they hadn't thought of before.

He said the material that could present the greatest danger is plutonium, the raw material used for the earliest models of atomic bombs. Plutonium is a byproduct of atomic power plants.

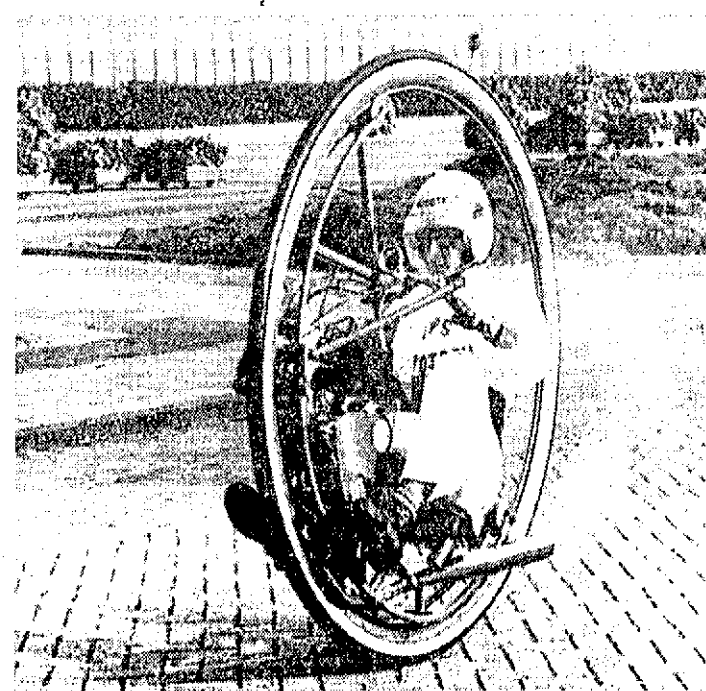

Asked if it was possible for a group such as the Symbionese Liberation Army to put together a nuclear explosive, Vickers replied, "I don't think there's that possibility. I don't think the capability is there."

But it's possible that other terrorist groups could, he added.

"You have some educated people in some of these groups that do have some knowledge of how to go about these things," he said.

Nixon mortgage extended

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has arranged a six-month postponement of his final mortgage payment on his San Clemente estate, officials said Friday.

Originally, a balloon payment of $226,660 was due Monday, along with $17,000 in interest.

Under a new arrangement which officials said was being worked out Friday, the President will immediately pay the interest, a small amount on the principal plus an "interest premium" for the right to extend the final payment by six months.

The officials, who talked to a reporter as the President was flying toward the ocean-bluff home for a working vacation, said a similar extension also was being obtained by an investment company formed by two of the President's friends to help him buy the property.

According to the arrangement worked out by his California lawyer and officials of Title Insurance & Trust, the new balloon payment on the mortgage would be due in mid-January, the officials said.

They said Nixon's mortgage interest rate of 7.5 per cent would remain unchanged. This is something of a break for the President, since mortgage rates have risen to 9 per cent or more since he bought the property in 1969.

Dean S. Butler, the Los Angeles lawyer who has taken over the bulk of Nixon's personal legal business, worked out the arrangement through the trust company and representatives of the Cotton estate, the sellers of the property to Nixon and holder of the mortgage, the sources said.

Butler had said earlier this week that Nixon probably would need to refinance the mortgage or get an extension because he didn't presently have the funds to make the final payment.

The President's savings accounts were virtually wiped out earlier this year when the Internal Revenue Service assessed him for $432,787 in back taxes.

Safe landing follows

Copter trouble delays Nixon

SAN CLEMENTE (AP)

—President Nixon flew to California Friday, but his helicopter landing at San Clemente was delayed for a few minutes when a red warning light indicated possible difficulty with the landing gear.

The helicopter hovered three feet off the ground while a safety device was attached and then made a safe landing.

The helicopter pilot, Army Lt. Col. Gene Boyer of Akron, Ohio, said there was no real danger. He was asked if President Nixon was aware of the difficulty.

"He said it was different," the pilot reported.

Nixon was riding with his wife, Pat, and their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cox.

Boyer said the red warning light came on and went off as he was touching down on the flight bringing Nixon from El Toro Marine Corps Air Station to his San Clemente compound.

To avoid the possibility of the landing gear's giving way on the landing, Boyer said, he immediately took the chopper off the ground several feet. A crew member from another presidential helicopter that had landed earlier came over and inserted a safety pin into the landing gear to lock it securely in place in case there was difficulty with the mechanism.

Nixon, his wife and the Coxes got off the helicopter and went directly to a waiting electric golf cart.

The President paused to wave to a small crowd that had gathered. One man yelled, "Welcome home." The President inquired, "Has the weather been good here?"

"Outstanding," he was told as he started what is expected to be a two-week stay at the Western White House.

The first item on the President's agenda is a meeting this morning with Vice President Gerald R. Ford, who also arrived in Southern California Friday evening. Press Secretary Ronald L. Zeigler said they would be discussing economic and other domestic matters.

Nixon intends to spend some time on problems of inflation while he is here.

Prior to Nixon's departure for his oceanside estate near San Clemente, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon "will make some basic decisions" on economic policy while in California.

He would not list the options Nixon was considering, although officials have ruled out a return to wage-and-price controls.

Impeachment bill

likely, Nixon told

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has been told by his advisers that the House Judiciary Committee probably will vote a bill of impeachment, informed sources said Friday.

The sources said Nixon has forbidden his spokesmen from relaying his own views on the outcome of the committee's deliberations, although one source indicated he shares his advisers' expectations.

The sources talked with newsmen after a White House spokesman reported — then later retracted — that both Nixon and his lawyer believe the committee will recommend impeachment.

At the daily White House news briefing, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon lawyer James D. St. Clair maintains it is "unrealistic to believe the committee will not vote out some sort of bill."

Earthquakes in Panama, Colombia panic cities

Associated Press

Two strong earth tremors Friday night shook Panama and central and western Colombia and reached earthquake force in some areas, authorities said.

There was panic in several cities, but authorities had no immediate reports of victims or damage.

The Geophysical Institute of the Andes in Bogota said two 15-second shocks were registered at 8:15 p.m. in the Colombian capital, each measuring 4.4 on the 12-point mercalli scale. But the institute said that at the center of the disturbance, near the Colombia-Panama border, the tremor was stronger and had earthquake proportions.

Reports from authorities in the Colombian state of Choco, near the Panama border, said communications were broken off between Quibdo, the state capital, and the area where the quake reportedly was strongest.

Sgt. Arnulfo Barroso of Panama's National Guard said he had no information from the border area.

He said the radiotelephone line with the region is normally shut off at night. No damage or injuries were reported from the shocks in Panama City.

In Boulder, Colo., the National Earthquake Information Center also said the quake appeared to be centered on the border between Panama and Colombia. It said the quake measured 7.3 on the Richter scale.

A 7 reading indicates a major quake, capable of widespread heavy damage.

Warren eulogized at last rites

Combined News Services

Former Chief Justice Earl Warren, eulogized as "the classical American," was buried with honors at Arlington National Cemetery Friday following services attended by some of the nation's top leaders.

President Nixon was among those at Washington's National Cathedral during the funeral of the man who presided over the Supreme Court during the 16 years when it was shaping a new era of jurisprudence.

Warren's body then was borne across the Potomac River for burial on a sunny knoll near the grave of former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Rabbi Alvin Fine of San Francisco, one of those presiding over services at the cathedral, said of Warren:

"Human decency and kindness was so instinctive, honor and dignity so natural in him that there could be no unguarded moments of indiscretion when he was anyone but the true Earl Warren ...

"In his political and judicial career, as well as in his personal life, Earl Warren was the classical American."

A U.S. Army detail fired three volleys as Warren's body was lowered into the ground. A bugler sounded taps. The Army band played "America the Beautiful." Military pallbearers in blue folded the flag that draped the casket and gave it to Chief Justice Warren E. Burger who presented it to Mrs. Warren.

The justices then shook hands with members of the family and said some final words of sympathy to Mrs. Warren.

Warren died of heart failure Tuesday at age 83. His casket lay in state in the Great Hall of the Supreme Court Thursday and Friday morning.

Those attending the funeral included former secretaries of state Dean Rusk and William Rogers, former defense secretary Robert McNamara, House Speaker Carl Albert, Sen. and Mrs. Edward Kennedy, and former solicitor general Erwin Griswold.

Ironically, the funeral brought together Nixon and the eight highcourt justices who are considering a Watergate case that may decisively affect his presidency.

Md. troopers sent into strike

Combined News Services

BALTIMORE — Gov. Marvin Mandel ordered 115 State troopers into Baltimore Friday to patrol city streets where violence occurred Thursday night when more than half of the police force joined a municipal strike. At the same time a judge ordered three union leaders jailed until the strike ends. The court order, however, did not affect the police strike, which became widespread after some officers went on strike Thursday night and were suspended. Violence then flared and one looter was shot to death. The action came after the police officers, who had been staging a work action by rigorously enforcing minor regulations in sympathy with the strike of 3,500 other municipal employees, walked out Thursday night and violence erupted in several high crime areas of the city.

Blood banks run dry

BOSTON — The Red Cross in Massachusetts ran out of blood Friday and said some hospitals were "in a state of panic" because there was not enough blood on hand even for emergency transfusions. "We're asking people to call us no matter where they are and give blood as soon as they can," said Miss Margie Gandolfi, a Red Cross spokesman. More than 130 of the state's 172 hospitals had no blood on hand and all but one of the major medical centers in the Boston area were dry, she said. The Red Cross supplies 90 per cent of the estimated 1,500 to 1,600 pints of blood used daily in the state.

Japan deputy premier resigns

TOKYO — Takeo Miki, Japan's American-educated deputy prime minister, resigned Friday, plunging the two-year-old government of Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka into a major political crisis. Miki, a 67-year-old graduate of the University of Southern California, told newsmen he quit because Tanaka had snubbed his proposals for the "modernization and cleanup" of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party. Miki, who headed the liberal faction in the LDP, had been one of Tanaka's strongest supporters and was also minister of environmental affairs. His resignation was a heavy blow to Tanaka, who faces a tough re-election battle next year as party president, a post that carries with it the premiership. Miki's resignation followed the party's electoral setback last Sunday when the LDP barely retained a majority in the upper house of parliament.

Threat to detente seen

MOSCOW — A prominent Soviet analyst of American affairs warned Friday night that detente is still threatened, not only by outright opponents of good Soviet-American relations, but by well-meaning liberals distracted from the main goal by side issues. The comment, part of a definitive article taking up nearly an entire page of the government newspaper Izvestia, appeared to be aimed mainly at American liberals who have directed attention to the problems of Soviet dissidents and Jews. But the main thrust of the article by Georgi Arbatov, director of the American Institute of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, was that the recent summit meeting between President Nixon and Soviet leaders represented a much greater success than the Western press has acknowledged.

Selassie aide seized

ADDIS ABABA — The army said Friday it had arrested Ras Mesfin Sileshi, a close adviser to Emperor Haile Selassie and one of the most powerful men in Ethiopia and the top man on its most wanted list. Western diplomats said his capture broke the back of any potential resistance to the army's takeover of the country. With a provincial force of some 50,000 men on call, Ras Mesfin, once in line for the throne, had been considered the most dangerous of all the wanted men. Since it took over the country two weeks ago, the army has systematically purged the country of nearly 80 prominent Ethiopians accused of corruption.

May 'dump' Gurney

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — State Republican leaders may dump indicted Sen. Edward Gurney if he does not abandon his re-election campaign, Florida's GOP chief said Friday. State party Chairman L. E. "Tommy" Thomas of Panama City said a number of party leaders had urged him to seek Gurney's withdrawal from the race because of his indictment Wednesday on bribery, conspiracy and perjury charges. But Thomas said he would not act on his own and would call a state executive committee meeting by next Wednesday to seek guidance.

Dance hall fire suspect

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. — A 22-year-old jobless high school dropout from a working class neighborhood in wealthy Greenwich, Conn., was charged Friday with setting a fire that ravaged a swinging singles discotheque on the New York-Connecticut border, killing 24 persons. Authorities charged the suspected arsonist, Peter Leonard, broke into the Carol Lanes, a bowling alley sharing the same building complex with Gulliver's discotheque, through a skylight in the early morning hours of June 30, and stole a radio, packs of cigarettes and change from a cigarette machine. Then, authorities charged, while more than 200 young persons danced to rock music next door, Leonard set fire to a nursery area in the basement where mothers left their children when they went bowling. Officials believed the fire was an attempt to cover up the burglary.

'Orange' Irish march

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — An estimated 100,000 Protestant marchers turned out on Friday to celebrate an ancient victory over a Roman Catholic king and a recent one over the British government. Sashaying with bowler hats, orange sashes and furred umbrellas, the Brethren of the Orange Order paraded six miles through the bomb-blasted streets of Belfast, more or less in step to the music of 120 bagpipe and accordian bands. Enormous billowing hand-painted silk banners underlined the history behind the celebration by depicting Old Testament scenes, bearded and obscure Protestant theologians and revered Ulster heroes in the traditional strife against Roman Catholicism and the Republic of Ireland. On full alert, almost 15,000 British troops conducted their own security parade along the way. Army trucks equipped with enormous extension fences, like mobile foul screens on a baseball diamond, were stationed in front of the Unity Flats and other Catholic housing enclaves to protect the marchers from bricks, flying milk bottles and other forms of Irish Republican Army weapons. Soldiers kept watch from the rooftops for more lethal missiles.

U.N. meet seats PLO

CARACAS, Venezuela — The Palestine Liberation Organization and 11 national liberation movements won admission Friday to the vast international sea law conference being held here. The 148-nation United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea agreed without a formal vote to admit the movements as official observers with no voting rights. But U.S. delegate John R. Stevenson "voiced regret that this political issue was taken up in the conference" and dissociated the American delegation from the decision.

Woodworkers accord

VICTORIA, B.C. — A tentative contract agreement was reached Friday between the International Woodworkers of America and the strike-bound British Columbia forest industry, labor minister Bill King announced. King, who mediated the dispute, said the new pact would be submitted soon to the 32,000 members of the coastal IWA, half of whom are out on strike. Terms of the agreement were not immediately known.

Divvying up

Construction multimillionaire Del E. Webb left $1.5 million tax free to his widow, Tony Ince Webb, and $75,000 a year to his divorced first wife, Hazel L. Webb, court records showed Friday in Los Angeles.

Webb, president of the Del E. Webb Corp., died in the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., July 4.

He started out as a $6 a day carpenter in Phoenix, Ariz., and built the company he formed into one of the West's biggest construction firms with hotel-casinos in Las Vegas and Reno, Nev., and retirement developments in Arizona and California. He was a former co-owner of the New York Yankees baseball team.

Webb, who had no children, also bequeathed $150,000 to the executor of his estate, Robert H. Johnson; $100,000 to his brother, Halmar J. Webb, and $25,000 each to his nieces Margot Weber and Candice Ballou.

Band leader

A British businessman said Friday in London he believed he had discovered a plane on the bottom of the English Channel that was the one Glenn Miller died in 30 years ago.

John Edwards, a sales manager for a telecommunications company, said a team of divers would use a converted trawler and underwater television cameras to try to identify positively a silted-over aircraft on an expedition next June.

Miller, whose big band sound was the rage of the 1940s, disappeared on a flight to Paris from southern England in 1944. The light aircraft was believed to have crashed in the Channel but this was never confirmed.

Smuggler

The author of a book about his career as a marijuana smuggler is using 10 per cent of his royalties to start a fund to help Americans imprisoned for drugs in Mexico.

Jerry Kamstra said Friday in San Francisco he acted in response to news reports from Mexico City of a hunger strike by 68 jailed Americans and Canadians who claim they are victims of torture, shyster lawyers, and U.S. embassy neglect.

Kamstra, 39, is a self-described retired dope smuggler who recounted his adventures in a recently published book "Weed — Adventures of a Dope Smuggler."

He said Barelays Bank will administer his "Americans in Mexican Jails Fund" which will provide food, clothes, and bedding "to help the 500 gringos in Mexican jails."

Fugitive

Fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco was billed $2.4 million Friday for the private use of a corporate Boeing 707 jet which he outfitted with a discotheque and sauna.

In a default judgment signed by federal Judge Charles Stewart in New York, Vesco was ordered to pay the bill to International Controls Corp. of Thomaston, Conn., an electronics firm he once headed.

Immediate payment appeared unlikely, however, because Vesco has been living as a fugitive in the Bahamas and Costa Rica since he was indicted in May, 1973.

Wife trouble

Detroit policeman Eugene Caviston wants to spend more time with his wife. So he's getting a divorce.

Police regulations require officers to live in the city, but the Cavistons reside in suburban Farmington Hills.

Caviston's wife, Jean, wouldn't move, and when the policeman took an apartment in the city and tried to visit his family twice a week, the department balked. That violates the intent of the regulation, superiors said.

So while Caviston appeals the regulation, he's filed for divorce.

"They are discriminating against married men," he said. "If I'm not married I can go out to see five different girls in five different counties five nights a week. But if I go out to see my wife during the week I'm doing something rotten."

Old love

Spencer Armstrong and his bride lost $90 a month in Social Security benefits when they were married. But, said the 84-year-old Armstrong, the couple won't have it any other way.

"I don't care what anybody does to us, we're not going to live in sin" he declared.

Armstrong and his wife, Beulah, 82, found out this week their combined benefits from Social Security would be less than when they were single. And now, they said, they won't be able to afford the monthly rent at McKenzie Manor.

Before they were married last April, the two got $412 a month in benefits. Now they get $322 a month, and the rent at the rest home is $408.

Moscow summit

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt will visit Moscow in October or November to reaffirm his commitment to the "Ostpolitik," or eastern policy, of his predecessor Willy Brandt.

Brandt, who won the Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts to normalize West Germany's relations with the Communist East, was scheduled to go to the Soviet Union in June but canceled the trip when he was forced to resign after discovery of a Communist spy in the Chancellory in May.

City said liable for police action Slain man's kin sue L.A.

United Press International

The family of a Los Angeles man gunned down by a policeman last January filed a $2.5 million wrongful death suit against the policeman and the city of Los Angeles Friday.

The lawsuit, filed by the family of James O. Baldwin, 34, claimed the city was partly responsible for the man's death because police officers are selected "in substantial part for their aggressiveness."

Baldwin was killed Jan. 11 by officer Paul D. Koerschgen, who has since been relieved of duty and indicted by a county grand jury on charges of alteration of a pistol. Koerschgen and his partner, Joseph M. Coppi, were named in the suit.

The suit claims Baldwin was stopped and questioned by the officers and then allowed to return to his car. "As James Baldwin re-entered his car," the suit said, "Koerschgen, without any justification or valid excuse of any kind, shot the unarmed James Baldwin five or six times at very close range with unauthorized dum-dum style bullets."

The suit claims Koerschgen then "planted" a "throwaway gun" on the victim to back up his story that he fired in self defense. The gun's identification numbers had been filed off, the suit claimed.

The city's method of training police officers is partly responsible, the suit said, because it produces "an unreasonable excessively high level" of "danger of abuse or violence or death to the members of the community," and especially the black community. The suit claimed that Koerschgen, a white man, was not trained to "deal in a calm, rational and unoppressive way with members of the black community." The victim was black.

Plaintiffs included the widow, mother, stepfather, brothers and sisters of the victim.

Boy booked Courthouse escapee sent to in youth's prison for 20 years to life gun killing

A 16-year-old boy was booked by Compton police on a murder charge Friday in connection with the fatal shooting of another youth during an argument Thursday, police said.

The victim, 18-year-old Anthony Jenkins of 561 N. Rose St., Compton, was pronounced dead at the scene after being shot with a 16-gauge shotgun at 3:30 p.m. Thursday, officers said.

Police said the shooting occurred at the rear of a garage at 156155 Washington Ave.

Frank O'Hare made it back to prison this week, but not the way he wanted to.

O'Hare, 23, was on trial for five armed robberies when he broke out of holding cell at the Orange County Courthouse in May with two other prisoners, overpowered two officers and took their guns. He was wounded four times after he wounded an off-duty officer, and he had asked for a prison sentence of up to 132 years.

O'Hare admitted a total of 37 felony charges and refused to consider Superior Court suggestions that some of his guilty pleas should be withdrawn and that a probation report should be made on him prior to sentencing.

If the court ordered the maximum terms for all the offenses to which O'Hare pleaded — including multiple counts of armed robbery, escape, assault on off-duty Highway Patrolman James Paul, jail-breaking and assorted other offenses — he could have received 132 years.

Instead, Judge Everett Dickey Thursday sentenced him to terms of from 20 years to life, divided this way: 10 years to life for each of the robberies, each of the five terms to be served concurrently; and 10 years to life on the other sentences, to be served concurrently after he finishes the robbery terms.

The reason for O'Hare's desire to get to prison? It seems that he has been in trouble with the law almost continuously since he was 14, and has been institutionalized so many times he is familiar with prison routine.

And, he added, he doesn't like the Orange County Jail.

In January, I purchased a used car from a Garden Grove dealer, who has since gone out of business. I still have not received my pink slip or 1974 license tags and my temporary registration certificate expired months ago. I contacted a local office of the California Department of Motor Vehicles, but I was told there was nothing that could be done until I found the dealer. I was given a notice of non-receipt, but I was told it wouldn't do any good until the dealer was located, so I haven't turned in the form. I can't drive the car until I get my license tags. Can ACTION LINE help? D.J., Long Beach.

By now, you should have received the pink slip and the 1974 tags. At ACTION LINE's request, the DMV headquarters in Sacramento searched its files and located your registration documents in the unclaimed file. They had been sent to your old address in Garden Grove in April and returned to the DMV. We gave the DMV your current address and the registration records were mailed to you. You apparently were misinformed. If you had filed the notice of non-receipt, the documents would have been located before. When a dealer goes out of business, he is required to submit his sales records to the DMV and local DMV offices are supposed to straighten out this type of registration problem. Motorists are not required to locate the dealer on their own, according to a DMV spokesman.

Medic alert

I need a Medic Alert tag but I don't know how to find the company that makes them. I am allergic to a new type of TB medicine and if I can get a tag with this information it will save me from a lot of suffering. Can you help me? J.P.C., Long Beach.

You can get a metal identification bracelet or pendant imprinted with a warning about your hidden medical problem from the Medic Alert Foundation International, P.O. Box 1009, Turlock, Calif. 95380. A stainless steel tag costs $7, a sterling silver one is $12 and a gold filled one is $28. The price of the tag includes a lifetime membership in the foundation. In addition to the tags, members carry wallet identification cards with details on their medical problems and in the event a member is knocked unconscious or is otherwise unable to communicate, a physician can phone the foundation for the member's medical history. The tax-exempt, nonprofit foundation was started in 1956 and has more than 420,000 members in the United States and 14 other countries. A brochure and an application blank has been mailed to you.

Overtime for nurses

I am employed as a nursing assistant in a federal hospital. I usually work six to eight days straight before I get a day off and I'm not paid any overtime. I've been told this is legal as long as I'm not required to work more than 80 hours during any 14-day period. However, I recently heard that a law called the Fair Labor Standards Act, which took effect May 1, states that all civil service employees must get overtime pay if they work more than 40 hours a week. Would I be covered by this new law and if so, will I get overtime pay retroactive to May 1. L.Y., Long Beach.

You probably won't be covered by the 40-hour overtime provision of the Fair Labor Standards Act, but a definite decision won't be reached for some time, according to a spokesman for the Civil Service Commission. The law you refer to simply amended the Fair Labor Standards Act to cover most federal employees. The Civil Service Commission will enforce the law in terms of federal employees. The act requires overtime pay for some job categories if an employee works more than 40 hours in a seven-day period, but there are many exemptions. Under the Fair Labor Standards Act, most private hospitals are specifically exempt from paying overtime wages if their employees don't work more than 80 hours in any two-week period and federal hospitals have been permitted to operate the same way since they weren't covered by the law at all. Now that they are, it's likely that the Civil Service Commission will grant federal hospitals the same exemption accorded to private facilities:

REACTION

In a recent ACTION LINE, you mentioned the Wave Project book, "How to Do Your Own Divorce" by Edward Sherman, but you failed to mention the Wave Project itself. You named several other organizations which assist individuals in obtaining their own divorces and we feel your readers should know that the Wave Project, 433-6180, still is alive and well. Assailant admits guilt in burglary

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

A 20-year-old Harbor College student, convicted last month of a misdemeanor assault charge in connection with a bridge-top struggle with police, Friday pleaded guilty to a burglary charge in an unrelated incident.

Jackie McGee appeared in Long Beach Superior Court for hearings in both cases Friday morning. His probation hearing and sentencing for the two cases were combined and scheduled in the court of Judge D. Sterry Fagan for 9 a.m. Aug. 8.

McGee's conviction for assault and one count of possessing marijuana stemmed from an incident on the Vincent Thomas Bridge the night of last Jan. 30.

According to testimony in McGee's trial, a car in which the defendant was riding was stopped on the bridge by police for a possible drug search. Police testified that a struggle broke out in which one officer nearly was pitched over the rail of the bridge and in which McGee was choked into unconsciousness.

The burglary charge involves the allegation that the defendant was found inside a Long Beach record store at 3:45 a.m. last March 16 when police were called to the establishment by a silent alarm.

McGee's plea to that single count of second degree burglary was entered before Judge John A. Arguelles, who continued McGee at liberty on $5,000 bond.

Lawndale man killed as truck flips on freeway

A Lawndale man was killed Friday when his pickup truck went out of control and overturned on the Santa Monica Freeway, California Highway Patrol officers said.

The victim, 24-year-old Robert Elwood Lawson of 14803 E. Burin Ave., was pronounced dead on the scene of the accident, east of Overland Avenue, at 1:20 p.m., officers said.

Two children riding with him who were believed to be his niece and nephew, were treated for minor injuries at Culver Memorial Hospital and released, according to officers. They were identified as Robin Lawson, 8, and Robbie Lawson, 6.

Investigators said Lawson's truck was traveling west on the freeway when he lost control of the vehicle for some unknown reason. The truck struck a guard rail and concrete embankment and overturned, they said.

Ervin's parting shot at sinners ends hearings

By LAWRENCE KNUTSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drawing from the Bible and Rudyard Kipling for a parting admonition to the sinners of Watergate, Sen. Sam Ervin presided over the final Friday of one of the most extraordinary investigations in congressional annals.

At the chairman's hand was the Watergate Committee's final report, a three-volume, 2,217-page document to be released publicly Sunday.

The portly North Carolina Democrat, whose southern, folksy manner and razor-sharp parries were witnessed by millions of Americans during weeks of televised hearings last year, quoted from his personal postscript to that report:

"THE LUST FOR political power of the presidential aides who perpetrated Watergate on America blinded them to the laws of God as well as to the laws and ethics of men."

"As one after another of the individuals who participated in Watergate goes to prison, we see in action an inexorable spiritual law which Rudyard Kipling phrased in this fashion:

"For the sin ye do by two and two you must pay for one by one."

The committee is recommending new laws to regulate the conduct of political campaigns but Ervin said law alone will not prevent future Watergates.

"When all is said and done," Ervin said, "the only sure antidote...is an understanding of fundamental principles and intellectual integrity in the men and women who achieve or are entrusted with governmental or political power."

ERVIN AND other members spoke to newsmen at a last committee meeting in the familiar, marble-and-oak Senate Caucus Room, where Watergate came to be etched upon the nation's conscience and gave Americans, as never before, an inside look at both the White House and a presidential campaign.

It was here the bulk of the evidence now considered by the House impeachment inquiry was developed; here that the public learned in dramatic fashion of events for which several have already paid the price of prison. Even as Ervin spoke, a jury considered the fate of yet another round of defendants — John Ehrlichman and the plumbers.

At this final session, Ervin and the others, including Sens. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., and Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., and Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, refused to assess individual guilt or innocence in the scandal. Similarly, the report itself

WITH HIS BALONEY held on high, Sen. Sam Ervin closes final session of the Senate Watergate Committee hearings Friday in Washington as Sen. Joseph Montoya smiles approvingly. is shorn of such conclusions. But they did declare they have learned nothing to discredit the startling testimony last year of the President's prime accuser, John Dean.

ERVIN SAID the transcripts of the President's conversations "tend to corroborate" Dean, while Weicker said "There is no question that nothing has transpired that would refute his testimony."

Ervin was challenged by reporters who said the final report appeared to be toned down compared to the draft reports leaked to the press.

He said the committee had decided to list no conclusions because the facts of Watergate are now being weighed in the federal courts and by the House Judiciary Committee considering the possible impeachment of President Nixon.

"There are two ways to prove that a horse is a horse," Ervin said. "One is to draw a picture of a horse in as exact detail as possible. The other way is to write under the picture, 'This is a horse.' We just drew the picture."

That picture, caption or no caption, completes the committee's Senate mandate to investigate and report on the conduct of the

Petersen 'has no evidence' involving Nixon in cover-up

By DONALD ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen, told the House Judiciary Committee on Friday he never received any information indicating President Nixon was involved in the Watergate cover-up.

During a closed session of the committee's impeachment inquiry, Petersen was asked by Rep. Charles Sandman, R-N.J., "Have you ever had any information that the President was wrongfully involved?"

Sandman later told newsmen, "Petersen said he had no information or evidence the President was wrongfully involved."

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., confirmed Sandman's version of the exchange and said, "Petersen is testifying point-blank that the President didn't know about the cover-up."

HOWEVER, Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., R-N.Y., noted that Petersen has not been "on top of the case" for more than one year.

"He doesn't know what we know," said Fish, who noted Petersen had told the committee he had not read all of the edited White House transcripts and was unfamiliar with other developments in the case. Petersen, head of the criminal division in the Justice Department, supervised the initial investigation of the Watergate break-in.

He told the committee of a series of conversations he had with President Nixon in April 1973 during which he briefed Nixon about the progress of the Watergate investigation.

Petersen said he gave the President information about developments in the secret sessions of the Watergate grand jury but had been unaware that the President subsequently relayed what he said to aides.

FISH SAID Petersen contended it was proper to tell the President what was happening before the grand jury.

James D. St. Clair, President Nixon's defense lawyer, described Petersen's testimony as "very favorable" to the President.

When St. Clair arrived for the start of the closed session, he was asked how he thought his defense was progressing and whether he thought the best chance for defeat of an impeachment resolution was on the House floor rather than in the committee with its 21-17 Democratic majority.

The White House lawyer commented that he'd be happy to have the committee reject an impeachment resolution and added:

"Politics being what they are, it wouldn't be very knowledgeable on my part to be unrealistic."

Asked if he was suggesting the committee would base its action on partisan political grounds, St. Clair replied: "Not at all. The impeachment process is undeniably a political process and the Constitution envisioned it as such."

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren told newsmen at the White House that the President agreed with St. Clair that the committee probably will vote impeachment. Warren said the President believes, however, that the full House will reject impeachment.

BUT WHEN the Judiciary Committee broke for lunch, St. Clair denied he has predicted what the committee would do.

"It might be quite presumptuous of me to make up the committee's mind for it," he said.

After St. Clair's statement, Warren retracted his statement, saying "I made a mistake." He said he had been "operating under a misunderstanding of what Mr. St. Clair" had said.

St. Clair said he believed the testimony on Thursday of John W. Dean III, former White House counsel, had helped the President's case.

"As I read the newspaper, Mr. Dean has made it quite clear he set the chain of events in motion that resulted in Mr. (E. Howard) Hunt's legal fees being paid even before he saw the President (on March 21, 1973), so the President could not have possibly had anything to do with it," St. Clair said.

Nixon has inflation plan that won't affect taxes, Ford says

By PATRICK LAMB

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — Calling inflation "the matter of gravest concern," Vice President Gerald Ford said Friday that President Nixon would unveil a plan to combat it that would neither increase nor reduce taxes.

"Every poll indicates that (inflation) is the matter of gravest concern," Ford said at the National Lieutenant Governors Conference. "We have to come up with something that will be reassuring and will indicate to the American people that there is a plan."

He said the plan would be ready in a week or two.

"It is my judgement that the Congress and the executive branch will not reimpose wage and price controls," Ford said. "There isn't going to be any tax increase, but there isn't going to be any tax reduction either."

He said there must be a maximum effort to balance the federal budget, which would mean sacrifices at the federal, state and local levels.

Earlier, Ford said that the complete package of Watergate evidence would eventually clear President Nixon of any "impeachable offense."

Ford said findings

released by the House Judiciary Committee showing discrepancies in the Watergate tape transcripts and a new, 19-minute gap in the tapes wouldn't jeopardize Nixon if an impeachment bill were brought before the House.

"I think the evidence as a whole—the new evidence as well as the old—clearly exonerates the President of any involvement in the Watergate break-in, of any involvement with the ITT or milk fund affairs," Ford said.

Funding could be too costly Legislature may forsake school equity plan

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

Equalizing the money California school districts spend on their pupils could be so costly that the Legislature may back away from the idea of equity, the state's legislative analyst said Friday.

A. Alan Post, who has advised the California Legislature on fiscal matters for 25 years, said legislators may try to "legitimize" the present method of school financing to avoid the agony of allocating hundreds of millions of dollars more for education.

"I would be opposed to that," Post told school administrators at a conference of school superintendents at the University of Southern California. He said equity is a goal that should be pursued.

Last April, Superior Court Judge Bernard S. Jefferson ruled that California's recently patched school financing system is unconstitutional because it fails to provide equal education.

Even after recent changes that pumped more state money into schools, the bulk of school finance comes from local property taxpayers, and school districts vary by as much as 40 per cent on how much they spend per child.

Jefferson told legislators to draw up a new financing method that would assure that above-average spenders such as Beverly Hills and Long Beach would spend only as much as the poorest district per child.

Long Beach school officials warned last spring that such action would

"level down" Unified School District programs unless vast new sums of state money were allocated to poor districts.

Recent legislation will have the effect of putting the squeeze on Long Beach and other wealthier districts as early as next year. It has brought more money into poorer districts, however. Jefferson ruled, in effect, that the legislation didn't go far enough.

Post indicated that the State Legislature might attempt a Constitutional amendment that would continue present finance methods and dump the idea of complete equity.

"To face the issue directly would likely require large additional state revenue," Post said. "It's unpleasant to suggest a state tax increase."

Various methods of achieving equity have been proposed, but the only effective methods involve the state "buying its way out," Post said. "They all require putting in more state money. It would take at least half a billion dollars to do the job."

One purpose of the additional money, he indicated, would be to bring the poorer districts up to the richer districts to avoid "leveling down."

Post said legislators are also concerned that if they provide equity among school districts, they will have to provide equal welfare, health and other services throughout the state. That would require even more money.

In addition, many urban legislators oppose equalizing school expenditures because it would hurt instead of help them—something advocates of equity didn't originally foresee.

"Most urban districts have a larger property tax base and spend more per pupil than rural districts," Post said. "Yet recent studies show that rich districts have as many students needing special help as poor districts."

"It won't solve school problems just to redistribute property tax wealth," Post said.

To win support from urban lawmakers, any solution must include special expenditures for disadvantaged children, he said.

He called for more sweeping tax reform that would change the entire tax system instead of dealing with only school taxes.

Will ordered to restructure hall

By NOEL SWANN
Our L.A. Bureau

Chief Administrative Officer Arthur Will was told Friday to make swift plans for separating psychotic youngsters from those who are victims of parental abuse or neglect at the county's McLaren Hall.

The order came from Supervisor Kenneth Hahn after he received a letter from Juvenile Court Presiding Judge William Hogoboom, who described the situation at McLaren Hall as "explosive and intolerable."

Hogoboom said that, under state law, the Juvenile Court has jurisdiction over a minor who is "physically dangerous to the public because of a mental or physical deficiency, disorder or abnormality."

The judge noted that such youngsters are still dependent children of the court and therefore cannot be brought into contact with delinquent children. Because of this, the dangerous child must be detained at McLaren Hall, the county's only detention facility for dependent children.

"It's possible that a child who has committed homicide or arson may be found to be suffering from a mental abnormality. And if that child is to be detained, this court has no other choice but to keep him in McLaren Hall," the judge said.

He noted that, on a recent visit to the hall, "These older, psychotic and often dangerous youngsters are mixed with the younger, passive children who are the victims of parental abuse or neglect."

The judge said, "The situation is explosive and intolerable."

He noted that the psychotic children often are too aggressive for state hospitals to handle and, because there are no other local treatment facilities available, they tend to spend excessive amounts of time in McLaren, "which only aggravates the problem."

The judge said the county must develop separate detention and treatment facilities for the youngsters. He noted there was an expansion program under way at McLaren Hall, which he said would "somewhat alleviate the problem" but stressed that the new building would not be ready for at least a year.

Hogoboom said he has met with officials of the Welfare and Probation Departments and has asked that all the younger children and infants be removed from McLaren and placed in "shelter-care" homes.

"However, a more desirable solution would be to find an interim facility for the detention of psychotic youngsters."

Will was ordered to report back to supervisors with some kind of program within 30 days.

No enrollment drop seen for UC in '80s

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — University of California President Charles Hitch told the Board of Regents Friday that enrollment at the nine-campus system will not drop during the 1980s, as previously believed.

"As we took a harder and better look at enrollment projections, it looks like we'll be on a plateau in the 1980s instead of having a dip," Hitch said.

Hitch made a presentation on the need for expanding university classroom and laboratory facilities at the second day of the regents' monthly two-day gathering.

THE MEETING marked the first appearance by Catherine Hearst, mother of fugitive heiress Patricia Hearst, since her 20-year-old daughter was kidnapped Feb. 4. Mrs. Hearst recently was reappointed to a second 16-year term on the board by Gov. Reagan.

Hitch said that, based on population estimates, enrollment would continue to rise moderately during the 1970s, level out in the next decade and then rise again during the 1990s.

"If we do not build new facilities now, we will actually be crowded to an intolerable extent during the late '70s and throughout the '80s," Hitch said.

Regent Fred Dutton warned of what he called an "edifice complex" and suggested the university should place more emphasis on renovating old buildings than constructing new ones.

IN OTHER business, Hitch eulogized the late Earl Warren as "a man who in many ways is the architect of the modern university." Hitch said Warren, himself a former regent, became an appointee of regents during his three terms as governor and kept up an interest in the university after he became U.S. chief justice.

Odds die with roulette 'vet'

BERKELEY (AP) — A 31-year-old postal worker known to have won bar bets on Russian roulette finally lost his life, police said Friday.

They said John W. Thomas apparently shot and killed himself playing the game Thursday night in his home with a .38 caliber revolver.

Police said Thomas had tightened the game's odds by using two cartridges instead of one and pulling the trigger twice.

The gun discharged on the second trigger pull.

Reagan vetoes smoking areas in high schools

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Reagan, a nonsmoker, vetoed a controversial bill Friday that would have allowed high schools to set aside special areas for student smoking.

Reagan also vetoed a bill to allow the practice of acupuncture by unlicensed persons upon referral by a physician or dentist.

He signed legislation allowing service station operators to buy gasoline from other suppliers if their parent oil companies cannot or will not supply them. The bill was part of a so-called "bill of rights" for service station operators.

Reagan said he had to "wrestle with my conscience" before vetoing the smoking bill by State Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo.

"THE BILL WAS intended to correct the present situation in which students smoke in school rest rooms, creating a problem for nonsmoking students wishing to use those facilities," Reagan said in his veto message.

"With only an occasional exception, high school students as an age group are prohibited by law from purchasing tobacco. It therefore seems that a far more sensible answer to solving the problem would be for school administrators to enforce a 'no smoking' rule on school property — period," said Reagan, who used to smoke but quit years ago.

"The intent of the law against purchase of tobacco by anyone under age 18 is obvious. The responsibility of school officials to prevent smoking in school buildings is equally obvious. Their failure to act accordingly should not result in local property taxpayers' subsidizing smoking rooms as an educational expense," the governor added.

Reagan said the acupuncture bill by Assemblyman Gordon Duffy would permit unlicensed and unregulated persons to practice acupuncture.

The service station measure by Assemblyman Jack Penton, D-Montebello, also would forbid oil companies from coercing dealers into buying products such as tires and batteries only from the parent company.

Reagan also vetoed a bill by State Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland, that would have appropriated nearly $2 million for increased salaries and fringe benefits for University of California employees.

305,000 notified of assessment hikes

Our L.A. Bureau

The first shipment of 305,000 assessment change notices was mailed to Los Angeles County property owners Friday.

While the notices will reflect big valuation increases in a number of other communities, Assessor Philip Watson said that the major assessment hikes in Long Beach will apply mainly to oil industry holdings, rather than residential properties.

Homeowners in other coastal areas, however, may be in for a shock. Watson noted that excessive sales prices on homes caused assessment jumps of up to 26 per cent in Palos Verdes Estates, 20 per cent in Rolling Hills and about 18.5 per cent in Rolling Hills Estates.

Other Long Beach area communities were better off, with Lakewood, for example, showing an assessment increase of only .5 per cent. Downey was increased by 8.3 per cent, Hawaiian Gardens by 3 per cent, Lomita by 1.4 per cent, Norwalk by 2.2 per cent, and Torrance by 6 per cent.

Paramount showed an increase of nearly 11 per cent. Long Beach jumped 10.8 per cent and Signal Hill increased 34.8 per cent, but in both cases increased prices of local crude oil were the main determining factor, Watson said.

Approved without Reagan signature

13 amendments to go on ballot

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Reagan Friday let special legislation to put 13 proposed constitutional amendments on the Nov. 5 election ballot become law without his signature.

In a statement, the governor said if he signed the measure by Assemblyman Mike D. Antonovich, R-Glendale, it could be interpreted that he supported the proposed amendments. "This would be inaccurate," Reagan said, but he added the electorate should have "the opportunity" to vote on the amendments covered by the bill. Among the major amendments approved by the Legislature that will appear on the ballot were these:

TAX—Would require the Legislature to provide increased benefits to renters comparable to any increase in the homeowner's exemption from property taxation. REGENTS—Reduces the term of office of appointed members of the University of California Board of Regents from 16 to 12 years on March 1, 1976; eliminates the presi-rent public housing approved by a city council or board of supervisors be subject to ratification by the voters. CIVIL SERVICE — Would exempt from civil service the chief administrative officer and five deputies of the California Postsecondary Education Commission. The voters rejected an identical proposal June 4. HOUSING — Repeals the requirement that low-

rent public housing approved by a city council or board of supervisors be subject to ratification by the voters. CIVIL SERVICE — Would exempt from civil service the chief administrative officer and five deputies of the California Postsecondary Education Commission. The voters rejected an identical proposal June 4. HOUSING — Repeals the requirement that low-

NEUTER — Eliminates all masculine gender terms from the Constitution and changes them to the neuter. LOCAL — Eliminates requirement that local government employees of certain cities and counties must not be residents of local government for which they work.

FEE — Requires the Legislature instead of regents to decide whether certain University of California students must pay an instruction fee.

Moretti, Roth bare $1 million funds

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Former Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, who unsuccessfully sought the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, raised $1.4 million during his campaign, it was reported Friday. Another unsuccessful Democratic candidate, millionaire William Matson Roth, raised $1.24 million—most of it from himself and his mother, Lurline.

Roth's and Moretti's post-election campaign-finance reports were the first to be filed with the office of Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. by major candidates for governor.

Midnight Friday was the deadline for filing the statements in what was the most costly gubernatorial primary election in state history. Candidates whose statements are postmarked by midnight are considered to have met the deadline.

CAMPAIGN finance statements filed just prior to the primary showed the major candidates had collected nearly $8 million. The previous record for primary elections was in 1966 when candidates of both parties spent $2 million.

The $8 million figure is expected to be surpassed when all the post-election reports are in. The statement by Moretti, D-Van Nuys, showed a $2,000 contribution from tennis star Billie Jean King, $5,000 from Assemblyman Jack Fenton of Montebello, one of Moretti's chief lieutenants, and $1,250 from Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond. Moretti's previous reports showed $21,000 from the Retailers Good Government Council, a $50,000 loan from Union Bank, a $25,000 loan from California General Management, $25,000 from the California Medical Political Action Committee and $20,000 from Carmen Warschaw, former national Democratic committee woman, and her husband. ROTH, a San Francisco-area resident, received a $250,000 gift from his mother which he coupled with $675,000 in his own funds to make a $925,000 loan to his campaign. William M. Brinton, a San Francisco attorney, gave Roth's campaign $10,000. Laurence S. Rockefeller added $3,000 and Lucille W.H. Koshland, listed as a Hillsborough housewife, chipped in $4,000.

FBI says it has no evidence Patty, Harrises in Guatemala

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — After eight weeks of an intensive manhunt for Patricia Hearst and two companions since the Symbionese Liberation Army shootout in Los Angeles, the FBI conceded Friday it does not have any idea where the missing heiress is. Charles Bates, in charge of the investigation, said his agents have checked out thousands of tips from all over the United States and around the world on alleged sightings of Miss Hearst. "We don't know where they are," he said. "If we knew, we would go and get them."

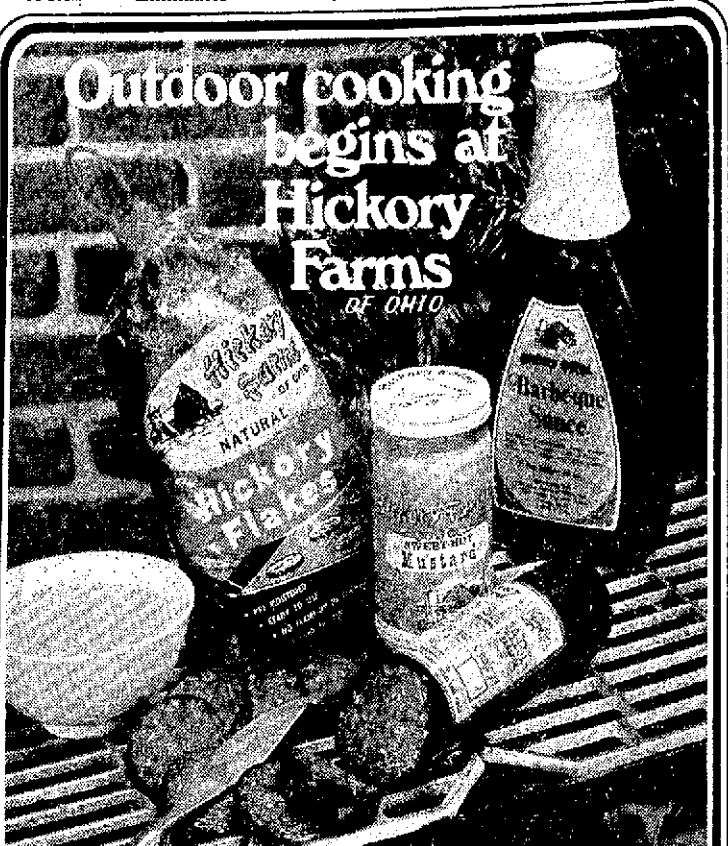

Bates' comment was made in response to a television news report Thursday that Miss Hearst had gone to Guatemala, changed identity and then may have returned to the Berkeley area from which she was kidnaped Feb. 4. She later announced she was joining her SLA captors. Marilyn Baker, a reporter for television station KQED in San Francisco, said Miss Hearst, along with SLA members William and Emily Harris, went to Guatemala, linked up with a terrorist group there, and then may have returned to the United States with a new identity. The Guatemalan terrorists provided the SLA fugitives with underground contacts in the U.S., Miss Baker said. She attributed her information to unidentified "police sources."

The FBI has "no information that they are in Guatemala or have been in Guatemala," Bates said. "There was a report several weeks ago—like hundreds and thousands of other reports in the United States and around the world. It was run out and nothing specific was developed." Nonetheless, in Guatemala City Friday, Col. Genaro Alvarado Robles, chief of the Guatemalan police force, announced he had ordered an intensive nationwide search to determine if Miss Hearst was actually in that Central American nation. Alvarado said he had ordered a check of "all strategic points" in the country including Guatemala City. he last verified sighting of Miss Hearst was on May 16 shortly after she and the Harris couple were caught shoplifting in Inglewood. The next day, six other members of the SLA died in a shootout with Los Angeles police. The 20-year-old daughter of Randolph A. Hearst, San Francisco Examiner president and editor, is charged with more than 20 criminal acts and is described on FBI posters as armed and dangerous.

White Panther Party headquarters burned

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fire gutted a White Panther Party headquarters Friday after several shots were fired while police attempted to arrest a burglary suspect. No injuries were reported and there was no estimate of damage caused by the blaze which firemen quickly controlled while several hundred persons gathered to watch. Terry Lane, a resident of the third floor apartment in the Haight-Ashbury district, said it was a headquarters for the White Panther Party, a radical group involved in community organizing. Police Capt. John Doherty said two shots were fired from inside the building after two plainclothesmen and two uniformed officers knocked at the door looking for a burglary suspect. Doherty said police cordoned off the block and a sniper team arrived which fired one or more shots into the dwelling. He said the fire broke out shortly after the police shots were fired, but said he did not know its cause. He said the woman police had sought on burglary charges, Miranda Nelson, was taken into custody along with two other persons. Lane, who later was taken off in a squad car, told reporters that the original shots were fired from the street, not from the apartment. Doherty said the residents of the apartment told police eight persons lived there.

4-month decline in food prices seen at an end

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — Herbert Stein, the President's chief economic adviser, predicted Friday that food prices would go up again this month after four months of decline and said inflation was still serious despite the lowest wholesale price increase in eight months.

White House spokesman Gerald Warren, meanwhile, told reporters the nation's economy was "now beginning to expand slowly." But he said the 10 per cent inflation rate remained the nation's number one problem.

Stein's forecast and the comments by Warren followed a Labor Department report that the wholesale price index had risen by 0.5 per cent in June.

THE OVERALL wholesale price index for June stood at 155.7, the department said. This was 14.5 per cent higher than the figure for June, 1973.

"The economy is now beginning to expand slowly, recovering from the energy shortage," Warren said.

Last month's wholesale price index increase was the smallest since last November's 0.4 per cent. The slowed climb was attributed largely to continued declines during June in the cost of farm products and processed foods, which dropped by 3.4 per cent.

Industrial prices rose rapidly during the month, however, paced by metals which climbed 3.1 per cent. Statistics showed that had farm prices gone up instead of down, the total wholesale price index for the month would have been much higher.

"THE JUNE increase of industrial prices — 2.2 per cent — was large and reveals the seriousness of the inflation with which the nation is contending," Stein said. This increase pushed industrial prices 29.9 per cent higher than one year ago.

Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, also suggested that food prices would again rise in July. But he said the increase probably would be at a lesser pace than those of 1973.

The gap between a consumer price increase of 10.7 per cent during the past year and the much sharper wholesale price growth over the same period, meanwhile, painted a bleak picture for consumers in months ahead since present wholesale prices usually are reflected in future consumer prices.

Greenspan faces economic bid

By EILEEN SHANAHAN

WASHINGTON — President Nixon will shortly nominate Alan Greenspan, a consulting economist in New York City, to be chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, it was learned Friday.

Greenspan is a conservative who advocates continuation of the present policies of credit restraint and continuation, or even intensification, of control over federal budget outlays.

As chairman of the council, he would replace Herbert Stein, who plans to leave the government in time to start teaching economics this fall at the University of Virginia.

THERE IS a possibility that Greenspan's confirmation to the chairmanship of the council may run into problems in the Senate Banking Committee.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., intends to try to delay action on the nomination for two reasons.

One involves the familiar problem of making sure an appointee to a high government position has sufficiently severed his ties with his previous business interests. On this matter, it appeared likely that an acceptable arrangement could be worked out.

THE SECOND issue that threatens Greenspan's confirmation has nothing to do with Greenspan personally.

What is involved is a battle between Proxmire and a number of other members of the congressional Joint Economic Committee, on the one hand, and Nixon's newly named economic counselor, Kenneth Rush, on the other.

Rush has taken the position that as a confidential adviser to the President he should not be required to testify before the joint committee, although he has agreed to talk to its members privately.

MANY MEMBERS of the joint committee, including some of the Republicans, believe that rush should be forced to testify in open committee sessions since he himself has said that he will be the person who makes the ultimate economic policy recommendations to the President, after listening to the views of the Council of Economic Advisers, the Treasury Department, the Office of Management and Budget, and other relevant agencies.

Proxmire, when asked Friday about the position he would take on the Greenspan nomination, said that he would attempt to hold up the confirmation until Rush agreed to appear before the joint committee.

It is the Senate Banking Committee, not the Joint Economic Committee, that will have to pass on the Greenspan nomination.

USDA thinks food prices won't soar

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top Agriculture Department economist said Friday he does not think retail food prices will soar the remainder of this year because of reduced harvest prospects for 1974 grain crops.

Don Paarlberg, director of economics for the USDA, said he is sticking by an earlier prediction that consumer food prices are most likely to go up 12 per cent for all of 1974.

Paarlberg said the department will analyze new farm-crop harvest information and will issue revised figures for retail food prices later.

"I CANNOT say now, but I would be surprised if there is a major revision," Paarlberg told a news conference.

However, Paarlberg said farm prices of cattle, hogs, broiler chickens, eggs, wheat and some other commodities have risen in recent weeks. Thus, he predicted, wholesale prices for those products in July will go up sharply.

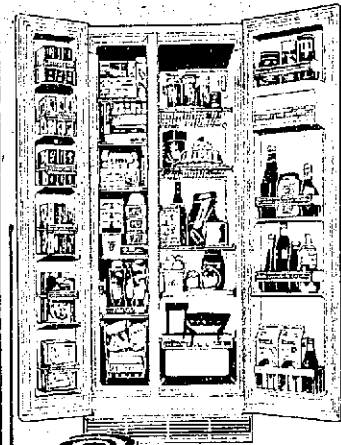

The government announced Friday that wholesale farm prices in June dropped again for the fourth straight month. The wholesale index for July will not be ready for another month.

Policewomen posing as prostitutes across U.S.

Combined News Services

DALLAS — An attractive 26-year-old policewoman who used to wear the uniform of a traffic cop now wears feminine frills on the job. But she still works the streets.

The unidentified woman poses as a prostitute to help vice squad officers arrest men who solicit her services.

Several of the nation's police departments are using policewomen as "ladies of the evening."

An Associated Press sampling found Friday that several police departments now use or are considering the use of women officers to pose as prostitutes and arrest unsuspecting men who suggest money dates. Other departments said they had stopped using women decoys because of fear of entrapment charges.

womanpower problems or lack of effectiveness.

"You can't run a business without a demand, so we figure eliminating the customers is just as effective as arresting prostitutes off the street," said a Dallas vice-squad official.

CRITICS of the pseudo-prostitute who has been working since July 1 said she uses entrapment procedures to ply the convention trade. But under the new 1974 Texas Penal Code, men are as guilty as women if they solicit a person in a public place to engage in sexual conduct for hire.

Her superiors said the woman has proved "quite a success." She works with two male officers of the vice squad, and they average one arrest a night.

"It doesn't bother me when I'm mistaken for a prostitute," said the policewoman. "I feel like I'm succeeding in what I'm trying to do. It's not me they're talking to—it's what they think I am."

She said she doesn't wear heavy makeup or revealing clothes.

FORMER City Councilman Joe Moody said he intends to complain about the operation at a council meeting Monday night.

"This has got to be the most incredible thing that I have ever heard of," Moody said. "While burglars are literally carrying my neighborhood away, the police are tying their officers up with a scheme like this. It just amazes me that the Dallas Police Department has so little to do that it can assign a woman and two officers to spend their time in bars."

Officers said the woman was briefed on what to say, how to act and how to avoid the legal pitfalls of entrapment before she was sent into taverns.

"We don't want to make any bad arrests or we'd really create a lot of heat," one vice-squad officer said. He said most male customers pay the maximum $200 fine rather than contest their arrests in court.

THE PROGRAM has proved so successful that the vice squad is considering adding a second policewoman to work the streets and bars.

Chicago Police Lt. George Bieck, commander of the Prostitution and Obscene Matters Section of the Vice Control Division, said the Windy City has been using female decoys for about a year.

He said the woman avoids entrapment charges by not making the initial offer.

"The male is the moving party. We're simply providing him with the opportunity to commit a crime that he already had in his mind," said Bieck.

The Los Angeles Police Department initiated the use of women officers posing as prostitutes in June of 1973, a department spokesman said. Police estimated about 531 men have been arrested on prostitution charges since the program began.

IN NEW YORK CITY, Capt. Lawrence Hepburn of the Police Public Morals Division said the city has used the technique and that it serves as a deterrent for a while, but he said judges think of "Johns" as less criminal than prostitutes and give only wrist slaps.

A prostitute in the Times Square area of the city agreed with him.

"Decoys are no problem," said the girl, who asked to be called Betty Lou. "Once a John, always a John."

And another one said she was more concerned with inflation than female decoys.

"The cost of a hotel room is up," she declared. "I used to charge $20 for me and $6 for the room. Now it's $10 for the room. It's hurting me."

* * * GARDENING * * *

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Though southern magnolias are considered evergreen trees with large leathery dark-green glossy leaves, many of them shed heavily — as if they're going dormant — before the blossoms burgeon forth in early summer.

These trees provide shade and coolness during the hot summer season. The waxy-white blossoms are fragrant, followed by heads of red berries in the fall.

They grow faster and better if given generous drinks of water when thirsty. Magnolias, or any other shade or flowering trees in a lawn, must be given additional water other than what the lawn sprinklers provide. Shallow lawn watering only induces many of the roots to grow nearer the soil surface. Deep waterings encourage the roots to probe deeper into the soil.

Gardener should put a sprinkler on the hose and have the sprinkler throw out the water from the trunk to at least a foot or two beyond the dripline of the outermost spread of the tree branches.

AN ELECTRONIC moisture meter can be used to check the moisture depth of the soil. A tree five years or older should be watered at least four feet deep. Another method used is to run the water for ten minutes then shut off the sprinkler. Half hour later dig up an inch square plug of soil four inches deep. Check the water penetration in that plug of soil. An inch penetration of water would mean — multiply that 10 minutes figure by 48 inches — four feet depth watering.

A larger figure than an inch depth water penetration should be divided into 48 inches. The answer would be multiplied by the 10 minutes which would be the total number of minutes the tree is thusly watered.

Hot weather means more frequent watering of pots and garden plants. Gardener can save on frequency of watering roses, flower beds, plants, and yes, even lawns if they'll top dress with a fine mulch-like material or well composted manure.

The top dressing acts like an insulator for a time, prevents the heat from evaporating the moisture from the soil, retains the water longer, and keeps the soil cooler. Additionally it smothers weed seeds from sprouting.

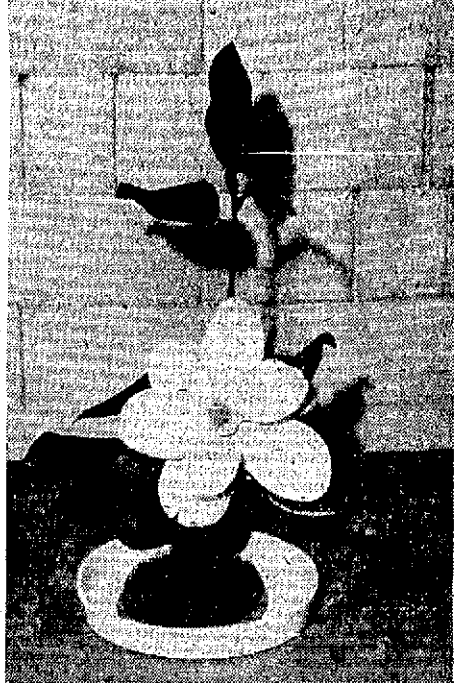

A lawn should be covered with one sack of quality grade weed free treated steer mulch material over each 200 square feet.

Speaking of steer manure, an official of a Southern California fertilizer company, explained that a steer manure that has been aged and composted for nine months, and during that period turned over, is as near a humus material as is possible. The double milling and screening makes it that much better. It is more economical for mulching when compared with humus material.

ANNUALS and perennials set out now grow faster during the hot weather. There's still time to get out zinnias, asters, petunias, marigolds, coral bells, foxy foxgloves, nierembergia, and amaranthus.

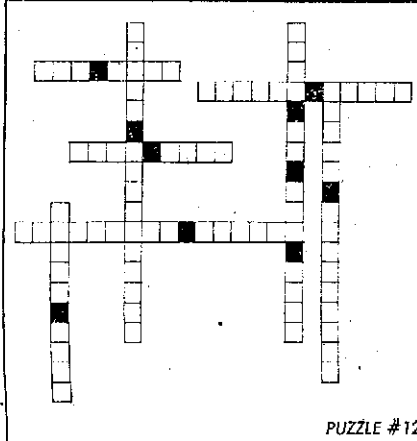

Begonias, impatiens, coleus, and columbines help brighten color lack shade garden areas.

Dry plant holes should be filled with water, the plants set out after the water has disappeared into the soil. Gardener should mix some form of organic mulch material with the soil, to set the roots balls in. Bone meal or a flower-fruit fertilizer with some of the organic material also should be dug into the holes, then the plants set out. The deeper soil moisture encourages the roots to grow down for better plant growth. The organic material makes a better home for the roots to get started and also retains moisture longer.

Dates set for Fern, Exotic Plant Show

Southern California garden hobbyists are taking advantage of long summer days to ready their prize plants for the 11th Annual Fern and Exotic Plant Show to be held July 27 and 28 at the Pomona Fairgrounds.

This year's show promises to be the largest collection of specimen ferns and specialty plants ever gathered under one roof.

Emphasis will be on the "tropical look" with over 50 displays already planned for the garden and patio show.

IN ADDITION to entries by members of the Los Angeles International Fern Society, there will be displays and demonstrations by members of the Akebono Bonsai Society of Southern California, the Bromeliad Society, the National Fuschia Society and the American Begonia Society.

Hours on Saturday, July 27, will be from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. On Sunday, July 28, the show will be open from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. A donation of $1 is asked of adults, children under 12 years are free.

Amateur, experienced and professional gardeners, as well as commercial growers, may enter plants for competition. Entries of all types of shade plants are open to all. There is no limit on the number of plants entered in one class or in the show. There will be trophies for outstanding entries, ribbons and cash awards.

ELEVEN local high schools will compete for cash awards through efforts of their horticultural students. In addition, there will be a large display created by members of the ornamental horticultural department at Cal Poly.

Members of the four garden societies entering the fern show will be available to answer questions. Many rare and unusual plants, horticultural supplies and unique plant containers will be sold during the two-day show.

Fifteen experts will judge the plant entries.

Further information about the fern show may be obtained by writing Wilbur Olson, Fern Society, Research Director, 2423 Burritt Ave., Redondo Beach, CA. 90278.

A farmer's simple life, how pure the joy it yields.

You've earned that vacation, so rest, don't do a thing ... Jesse James robbed his first train July 21, 1873 ... New moon July 19 ... 'Tis not the best month for fishing ... Average length of days for week, 14 hours, 57 minutes ... Klondike Gold Rush started July 18, 1897 ... Highest P.M. tides of the year this week ... Armstrong and Aldrin on moon July 20, 1969 ... Rome burned this week, A.D. 64 ... What a day may bring, a day may take away.

Old Farmer's Riddle: When is your heart like a policeman? (Answer below.)

Ask the Old Farmer: Can you tell me why the big heavy blue coats worn by the Navy are called "pea" jackets? G.H.A., Athol, Mass.

It was first called a "pea" jacket because "pea" meant the very top, apex or top of things. The jacket was originally designed for going aloft, to the masthead, etc.

Share Hints: To create something a little different from ordinary coleslaw, shred cabbage, then add beet strips and horseradish. This is colorful as well as appetizing. ... Riddle answer: When it keeps a regular beat.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

New England: Light rain to start, then clear and warm by midweek; heavy rain latter part.

Greater New York-New Jersey: Showers at first, then partly clear and quite warm; showers again at end of week.

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Warm light rain to midweek, then partly clear and warm to end of week.

Southeast Coastal-Piedmont: Week begins cloudy and cool, then rain along coast; end of week clearing and warm.

Florida: Rain all week in central part; intermittent rain all week in south and north but heavy rain in south on weekend.

Upstate & Western N.Y.-Toronto & Montreal: First part of week cloudy and rainy; end of week warm and showery but some sun.

Greater Ohio Valley: Early week fair in west and rainy in east; clearing and hot latter part.

Deep South: Showers to start, then cool; end of week mostly sunny and cooler.

Chicago and Southern Great Lakes: Mostly clear and pleasant all week but turning hot latter part.

Northern Great Plains-Great Lakes: Mostly sunny and turning hot all week except late week rain in east.

Central Great Plains: Clear and hot most of week; latter part very hot in east and rainy in west.

Texas-Oklahoma: Clear and hot to midweek, then intermittent rain and cooler to end of week.

Rocky Mountain Region: First part of week rainy, heavy to start in east and central; end of week sunny and hot.

Southwest Desert: Cloudy with light rain most of week with highs in low 100s; showers on weekend.

Kissinger credited with breaking CIA monopoly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has succeeded where others failed in making sure secret intelligence reports reaching the President reflect the views of groups other than the Central Intelligence Agency, according to an influential military journal.

The privately published Armed Forces Journal reported Friday that Kissinger had brought about the creation of a new "National Intelligence Bulletin" in which conflicting opinions within the intelligence community are reflected regularly.

"Although no one will admit it," the journal said, "the creation of the National Intelligence Bulletin... is a direct outgrowth of the intelligence reporting leading up to last October's Yom Kippur War."

It said that on the very morning the Egyptians crossed the Suez Canal a CIA-processed document for the White House stated it was the "agreed" position of the U.S. intelligence community that: "It is highly unlikely that the current military activity in the Mideast will evolve into a large scale conflict" (or words to that effect).

Because intelligence estimates often are based on imprecise information or reflect guesses about future events, it could prove important to national leaders to receive the conflicting views of more than one agency.

Under the old system of "agreed" estimates, the views of members of the U.S. foreign intelligence community — the Defense and State Departments, the National Security Agency and, at times, the FBI — were presented to the CIA for "polishing." The CIA then published these estimates, said to have usually conformed closely with that agency's views, in a daily Central Intelligence Bulletin.

This system dated back to the days after World War II when the CIA was established. It was a prerogative jealously guarded by the agency.

Without citing its sources, Armed Forces Journal said the new National Intelligence Bulletin had replaced the Central Intelligence Bulletin on May 29.

"After many attempts by many people, the persistent Secretary (Kissinger) may have finally sliced through the bureaucratic crust of the U.S. intelligence community," the journal said.

In the old days, the journal said, the CIA reported dissent to the "agreed" estimates in footnotes, but only in very rare cases when a contributing agency insisted. It said footnotes appeared in the daily intelligence digest on an average of four per year.

The journal said the new bulletin, published by a staff headed by Army Lt. Gen. Daniel Graham which reports directly to CIA Director William Colby, "candidly includes the dissenting views" of the intelligence community on an almost daily basis.

Jackson hits U.S. on India A-tests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — India unsuccessfully tested a nuclear device three months before its underground explosion in May but the United States kept details of the test quiet, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Friday.

Jackson said the United States knew about the unsuccessful test that occurred in February "but made no attempt to get them to stop" further tests. Jackson said he had learned of the Indian test from independent sources "just recently" but would provide no further details.

JACKSON made his statement before a Senate hearing of top government nuclear energy officials called to testify on the export of nuclear materials and technology.

The International Finance subcommittee, chaired by Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., began two days of hearings prompted by the agreement to provide Egypt and Israel with nuclear technology assistance.

John Erlewine, general manager of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, told the subcommittee the United States also was considering the "serious possibility" of extending similar assistance to Iran as well as to Mexico and Yugoslavia.

ERLEWINE said the United States presently had agreements to provide technical assistance to 29 countries and that "adequate safeguards" against misuse of nuclear materials for weaponry were imposed by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA).

But Jackson charged that the IAEA was seriously understaffed and underfinanced, and that its safeguard requirements contained "broad loopholes" through which participating countries could divert peaceful nuclear materials to other purposes.

Jackson also said the IAEA had no safeguards against theft and diversion of fissionable materials and that its international inspection force was also inadequately staffed.

"You always have the possibility of some country abrogating it (the conditions of the agreement) but there are sanctions against this," Erlewine said.

"This is frightening to me," Jackson said. "The standards we apply are not adequate and the safeguards are not adequate."

Russ outstrips U.S. in missiles, says expert

STANFORD (AP) — Soviet Russia is moving rapidly ahead of the United States in the arms race, the director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center said Friday.

The United States will be inferior in total ballistic missile strength in three years and could be faced down by the Soviets in a confrontation like the one during the Cuban missile crisis, said Dr. Hans Mark.

Mark also said an incident on the high seas, where the Soviets are establishing superiority, could trigger a dramatic escalation of the arms race.

"We probably are not the world's most powerful military nation now, and certainly won't be in a few years," Mark told a seminar in aeronautics and astronautics at Stanford University. "But this is not widely perceived by the public."

Unlike its position at the time of the Cuban crisis, the United States clearly will be inferior in total ballistic missile strength in three years and could be faced down, Mark said. "The U.S. is 'substantially equal' to the Soviets in missile delivery capacity now, he added.

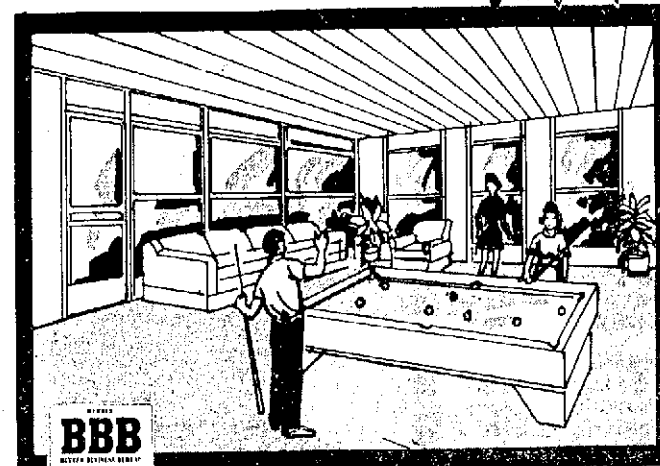

He predicted that in three years, the Soviet Union "certainly will be the world's leading naval power," able to control access to Turkey or the Eastern Mediterranean.

instructed them to prepare and file an appeal.

"As you know, we have been concerned from the very beginning about our ability to obtain a fair trial in this district," Ehrlichman said.

In pretrial motions, Ehrlichman had asked the trial be moved to another city on grounds that Washington preoccupation with Watergate and the city's heavy black population and traditional support of the Democratic Party would make a fair trial here impossible.

The jury which convicted Ehrlichman contained nine blacks and three whites, roughly the racial balance of the Washington population.

"Also a great deal of the substance and background of this case was excluded from the evidence by rulings of the court," Ehrlichman said, "and this also will be part of our appeal."

"I have had for many years an abiding confidence in the American judicial system, and nothing that happened today has any way shaken my confidence in that process," Ehrlichman said.

"Right?" Ehrlichman said to his wife, who had held a front row seat throughout the 12-day trial.

"Right," she replied.

WORD OF THE conviction reached President Nixon as he was en route to San Clemente on his plane, the Spirit of '76.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said: "It would be inappropriate for us to have any comment whatsoever while the matter is still in the judicial process."

James D. St. Clair, President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, was asked for his reaction when he emerged from a session of the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry.

"I just learned of the verdict," he said. "I don't believe it has any effect on these proceedings."

None of the defendants or their friends or relatives showed any emotion as jury foreman W.A. Garner, a retired lift operator for the Government Printing Office, read the verdict.

The jury had gotten the case at 11:25 a.m., took a two-hour lunch break and reported to Gesell at 5:05 p.m. it had reached a verdict.

IN CONNECTION with the conspiracy count, Ehrlichman was accused of authorizing the Fielding-Ellsberg operation, Liddy with directing it and Barker and Martinez with actually breaking into Fielding's office and going through his files.

Ehrlichman was convicted of lying to FBI agents in an interview on March 1, 1973, in which he said he had not seen any records of the White House's Pentagon Papers investigation for over a year. The government charged he had actually looked at them less than two months earlier and even removed some documents from the file.

Two other counts on which Ehrlichman was convicted said he lied to a grand jury on May 14, 1973, when he said he had learned only after the break-in that the White House plumbers unit carried out the operation, was working on a psychological profile of Ellsberg and that efforts had been made to obtain information from Ellsberg and Fielding.

The government produced a series of documents and witnesses which it said proved Ehrlichman had known about these things before the break-in. Ehrlichman had contended he had merely forgotten and was not lying.

THE JURY cleared Ehrlichman of a fifth count which charged that he lied to the same grand jury when he said former aide Egil Krogh had files on the plumbers unit but failed to mention himself or another ex-aide, David Young.

Ehrlichman, a native of Seattle, joined Nixon during the 1968 presidential campaign as advance man and arranged some 50,000 miles of travel for the presidential candidate. He was recruited by Haldeman, whom he had known since their student days at USC.

After Nixon's election, Ehrlichman moved to the White House as one of the President's two top advisers, holding the same status in the domestic area that now-Secretary of State Henry Kissinger held as foreign affairs adviser.

Ehrlichman acted as Nixon's liaison and arm of authority from the White House with the various Cabinet departments and government agencies dealing with domestic affairs, from welfare to ecology.

When Ehrlichman and Haldeman resigned April 30, 1973, Nixon called them "two of the finest public servants I have ever known."

LIDDY, 43, was legal counsel for Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign when the Watergate burglary occurred. He had also been a Treasury Department official and a White House adviser to Nixon. He is serving a six- to 20-year sentence in the Watergate case and a contempt sentence for refusing to talk to a grand jury.

Barker, 57, and Martinez, 52, both are Cuban exiles from the Castro regime. Barker is free on appeal after serving more than a year of an 18-month to six-year sentence in the Watergate case, and Martinez, who was on the CIA payroll at the time of the Watergate break-in, is free on parole after having served more than a year of his one-to-four-year sentence.

At the request of Ehrlichman's lawyers, Nixon had submitted a written statement given under oath saying he had not authorized the Ellsberg-Fielding operation and had not learned of it until a year and a half after the break-in occurred.

Judge Gesell said this was only one of two or three times in history that such a request had been made of a sitting president.

Another star witness was Kissinger, who also denied any involvement in the operation. At the time of the break-in Kissinger was chief of the National Security Council which was concerned with the government secrets being leaked.

IN HIS CHARGE to the jury, Judge Gesell said the break-in at Fielding's office would have been illegal even if done for patriotism or the nation's safety, as defense lawyers had suggested.

The judge told the six men and six women of the jury that the government does not have the right to cast aside the constitutional ban on unlawful search and seizure and violate every citizen's right "to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects."

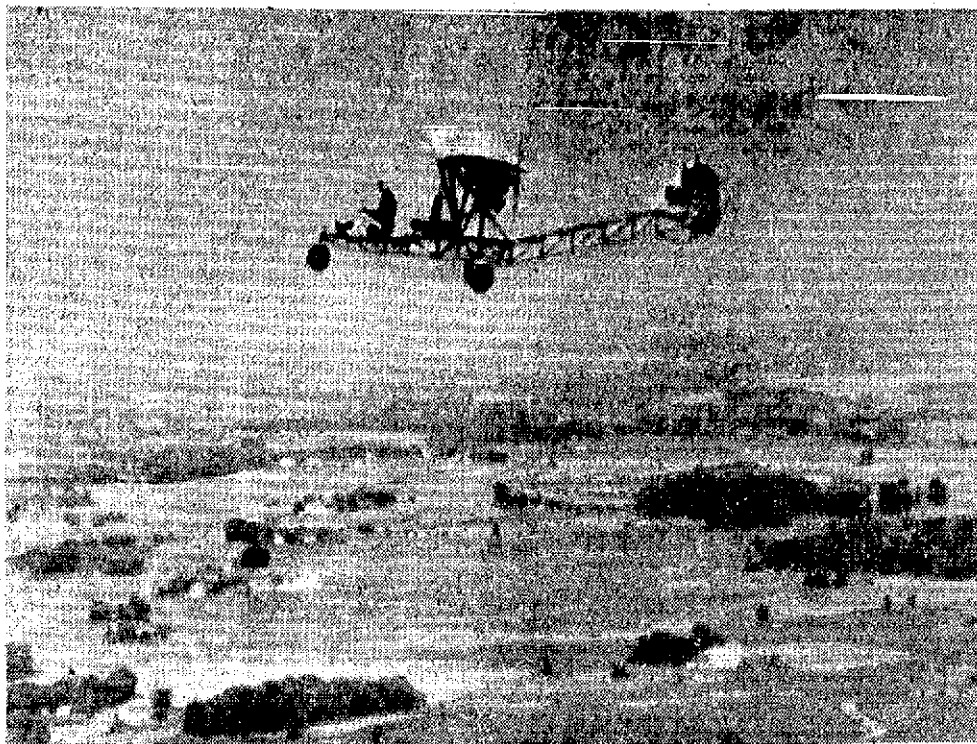

"An individual cannot escape criminal liability simply because he sincerely but incorrectly believes that his acts were justified in the name of patriotism, or national security, or a need to create an unfavorable press image, or that his superiors had the authority without a warrant to suspend the constitutional protections of the Fourth Amendment," Gesell said in his charge to the jury.

No matter how highly motivated, Gesell said, the men who planned and executed the break-in of Fielding's office on Sept. 3, 1971, broke the law if they did it without a warrant.

"SOME MAY HAVE acted from political motives, others may have acted for patriotic reasons, others may have thought the security of the country was at stake, others may have been caught up in the desire to produce results whatever the means," Gesell said.

"It makes no difference why any particular person joins the conspiracy," Gesell said, "so long as the proof shows beyond a reasonable doubt that he knowingly participated."

The government charged that a team from the White House "plumbers unit" broke into the Beverly Hills office in search of files on Daniel Ellsberg, the man who leaked the Pentagon Papers.

Ford addresses GOP in Orange

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Vice President Gerald Ford urged 1,000 diners at a $125-a-plate Orange County Republican dinner Friday night to vote for GOP nominees, like Bill Bond in the Long Beach area 34th Congressional District, and to avoid a "veto-proof Congress," which he said would be a legislative dictatorship.

Predictions of 50- to 100-seat gains by Democrats in the Congress and as many as seven U.S. Senate seats would result in a stranglehold over the presidency, Ford told the dinner gathering in the Disneyland Hotel Convention Center.

A "veto-proof Congress," Ford said, "would result in the wildest spending spree in the history of the United States. We want, rather, an inflation-proof Congress," Ford said.

The vice president lauded Congressman Charles Wiggins as a member of the House Judiciary Committee who "believes the President is innocent." Ford himself said he believes President Nixon is innocent of any impeachable offense.

The vice president emphasized that none of his party's 1974 candidates "had anything whatsoever to do with Watergate."

"We ought to talk accomplishment," Ford said. "And no one has done more for peace than Dick Nixon. There never have been better prospects for decades of peace."

Witnesses said Fielding had refused to give the files to the FBI and that the special White House unit then decided to get them on their own through a "covert operation."

EHRlichman acknowledged initialing his approval on a memo authorizing the operation but said he did not take it to mean a break-in. However, Gesell said Fielding's civil rights would have been violated even without a break-in if his files were examined against his will.

"When a government agent invades an area in which there is ... legitimate expectation of privacy, to look through such papers without permission, that is a search," Gesell said.

"A physical break-in is not essential," the judge told the jury. "Such occurrence emphasizes lack of permission, but any entry, surreptitious or otherwise, is enough for unauthorized search."

Gesell said a warrant issued by a judge or magistrate and executed by properly constituted authorities would be necessary before such a search could be conducted legally and "there's no proof that any of these procedures were complied with in this particular matter."

Gesell said there was no evidence that President Nixon initiated the operation in the name of national security and said neither the President nor any government agency would have the authority to order a warrantless search under the circumstances.

"THERE WERE many lawful things done to stop the leaks" of sensitive material from the White House, Gesell said, but the question for the jury to determine was whether the defendant committed the unlawful one of warrantless search.

Andrew Hall, one of Ehrlichman's defense lawyers, objected to the judge's instructions on what constituted illegal search, but Gesell refused to amend his instructions to the jury.

"My failure to charge Mr. Ehrlichman's theory of the case was because there is no theory of the case," Gesell told Hall, with the jury out of the room.

"I explained to you in detail that his defense has been one of darting and dodging around the various issues in the case," Gesell said, "but there is no coherent statement of his defense."

The plumbers unit was created at the White House in the summer of 1971 after Ellsberg leaked the Pentagon Papers on U.S. involvement in Vietnam, and others leaked secrets which caused public sensation and some embarrassment to the administration.

YOUNG AND Krogh, former co-directors of the plumbers, had pleaded guilty earlier and testified for the prosecution. Both said Ehrlichman had approved the Fielding operation.

Young and Krogh said the operation sought information to be used in a psychological profile of Ellsberg being prepared by psychiatrists at the CIA.

Another government witness, former presidential counselor Charles Colson, has pleaded guilty to a charge of trying to spread unfavorable publicity about Ellsberg, who was facing trial on charges of leaking classified documents. Colson said Nixon urged him to do it.

Colson testified at the trial that Ehrlichman had asked him to raise money for an unspecified project which turned out to be the Ellsberg break-in.

ON THE perjury counts, Ehrlichman acknowledged that he made some statements to the Watergate Grand Jury which were not true but said it was through loss of memory and not intentional.

Lawmakers get grip on budget

By CARL C. CRAFT

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon signed on Friday a landmark budget-making reform bill giving Congress a tighter grasp on federal purse strings and curbing his own power to impound money that legislators want spent.

"Fighting inflation is everybody's battle," Nixon said. He urged that current spending be held to about $300 billion, and called for a balanced budget in 1976.

MEANWHILE, Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said the President will make "a major economic address" in the next 10 days or so.

The bill, creating new congressional machinery, provides reform of the legislative budgetary process in a bid to give lawmakers a more effective over-all grip on federal budget and spending priorities.

The last such attempt at reform, in 1946, failed — procedures were set up but never were implemented because of bickering in Congress. That left the system of voting funds for government agencies in its presently fragmented condition.

IN RECENT years, legislators have pressed anew for reform as they contended congressional control of the purse strings had slipped away to the executive branch.

The new plan calls for two powerful budget committees — one in the House, the other in the Senate — supported by a congressional budget office and staffs of experts.

The government's fiscal year, currently starting July 1, would be moved to Oct. 1 starting in 1976.

After the President offers his spending proposals, the new committees would develop and Congress would pass, by May 15 each year, a target resolution setting out total spending and a breakdown by major categories.

This is expected to provide debate over priorities. Separate money bills then could be passed, as at present, but all would be subject to review, and, by Sept. 15, Congress would adopt a second budget resolution — either calling for adjustments to meet the previously adopted ceilings, or changing the ceilings. The budget process would be completed by Sept. 25.

THE SWITCH in the date for starting the new fiscal year, therefore, would mean that each year the government would start spending on an up-to-date basis instead of beginning — as it now does — in fiscal uncertainty with most appropriations still pending.

On impoundment, which has been a battleground for Nixon and the Democrat-dominated Congress, the new law requires congressional approval for the President to withhold money as a definite reduction in spending. If the impoundment merely delayed funds, the President could order it but either house of Congress could veto the delay.

New charges found against tip fugitive

A police records check has turned up additional charges against a man who was arrested Wednesday as the result of an Independent, Press-Telegram Secret Witness tip, and the suspect will be taken to Pennsylvania next week to face those charges.

Long Beach burglary detectives said Friday the additional charges against Michael Charles Bowker, 32, residential burglary and theft from an automobile, were discovered in a check with Pennsylvania

State Police. Pennsylvania officers are due in Long Beach Monday to return Bowker to that state for trial, detectives said.

Long Beach officers said their earlier records check had turned up a Pennsylvania warrant against Bowker for alleged auto theft, and a federal warrant for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Friday afternoon Secret Witness MKW 731, whose tip led to Bowker's arrest, was paid a $500 reward.

A 190 million-ton problem

Public service directors huddle on waste recycle

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

"It's a problem that can't be swept under the rug," said a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency official.

He and 120 other public services directors were talking about the massive problem of moving the country's 190 million tons of annual garbage production.

They spoke Friday at a National League of Cities conference on waste management in Inglewood.

The two-day session was highlighted by an address by San Jose Mayor Norman Mineta and a discussion of state legislation that would have a dramatic impact on California's waste processing. The two-day session focused on the problem of recycling the materials that are now being thrown out.

"Waste management is more than just hauling in the garbage," said Orange County Supervisor David L. Baker, who as head of the state Solid Waste Management Commission talked about the coming changes in waste collection.

Baker was joined by Robert M. Wilkinson, Los Angeles councilman; James Martin, Fresno public works director, and Marilyn Ryan, mayor of Rancho Palos Verdes.

Martin, a nationally known expert on waste management, said a California wastes law set to go into effect by 1979 will reach all the way to the homeowner and will also affect city land-use decisions and have a significant impact on property taxes.

The law, Martin explained, requires that counties, together with a majority of the cities in each county, come up with a regional master plan for disposing of and recovering wastes.

Regulations in the local plans will effect the size of containers that a citizen can use to hold trash, how often trash can be collected and where it is taken for disposal.

"Resource recovery is the keystone of the legislation," Martin noted. The two major elements or recovering resources are recycling paper products as well as some metal goods, and using burnable waste to generate power.

Both St. Louis and Nashville have working waste-to-energy programs.

Mineta, who is on the board of directors of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, said that elected officials "must get actively involved in waste management."

"There have been enough studies, surveys and proposals," he said to the delegates from 14 western states.

He said it was ironic that "we use a large of amount of scarce energy in refuse trucks to transport and bury a potential source of energy — waste products.

William F. Farnam, public works director of Inglewood, opened Friday's session by citing the "high costs in this country for refuse collection."

He said New York City pays $58 per ton to have its garbage picked up.

John Rowley, manager of Long Beach refuse collection, said that local residents pay $12 to $14 a ton to have the trash collected.

Farnam noted that a national survey showed that two cities in the same area offering about the same waste service can differ by as much as $1.70 per household for collection.

Coastal panel to attend Caspers memorial Monday

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

Regional coastal commissioners will hold an abbreviated meeting Monday before attending memorial services for Orange County Supervisor Ronald W. Caspers in Corona del Mar.

Caspers, one of 12 commission members, disappeared June 13 when the motor yacht he and nine other persons were aboard apparently broke up and sank in heavy seas 275 miles south of San Diego.

Aboard the 59-foot motor yacht Shooting Star were two of Caspers' sons, Kirk, 20, and Eric, 18. Monday's services at St. Michael and All Angels Church will be in memory of all three Casperses, according to one of the supervisor's aides.

A spokesman for the South Coast Regional Commission, on which Caspers served since its establishment Feb. 1, 1973, said most of Monday's planned agenda would be continued until July 22.

However, among those items expected to be considered when commissioners meet from 9 a.m. to noon Monday in the Long Beach Harbor Administration Building, 925 Harbor Plaza Drive, are:

— An application from the city of Long Beach for the construction of four settling basins to retain dredged material — east of the north approach of Queen's Way Bridge near the swimming lagoon, south of Ocean Boulevard and west of 54th Place, south of Ocean Boulevard and west of the entrance to Alamitos Bay, and southwest of Marine Stadium at Marine Park.

— An application for construction of two duplexes on two separate lots and construction of a triplex at two lots at 5521-5525 Seaside Walk and 3-7 Balboa Place, by James Read, Jr.

— An application from Robert K. Schnell for the construction of a six-unit apartment building at 5398 Appian Way.

The commission will continue to operate one member short until the Orange County Board of Supervisors appoints one of its members to fill Caspers' seat, a spokesman said.

In accordance with the Coastal Conservation Act, the board elected Caspers to represent the county on the South Coast Regional Commission, which has jurisdiction over the coastline in Orange and Los Angeles counties.

L.B. council approves $211.4 million budget

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM

SATURDAY, JULY 13, 1974

MARKETS ON PAGES B-7 through B-9

With only minor changes, the Long Beach City Council voted unanimously Friday to adopt City Manager John R. Mansell's recommended city budget for the 1974-75 fiscal year.

It calls for expenditure of $24.2 million in tax-supported funds, an increase of $9.6 million over last year, and total city expenditures of $211.4 million, an increase of $29.8 million from fiscal 1973-74.

Based on the Los Angeles County assessor's preliminary assessment figures for Long Beach, the budget can be financed with a 12.8-cent increase in the property tax rate, according to the city's budget and research division.

THE NEW rate would be about $2.12 per $100 of assessed valuation, and would mean that the owner of a home with a market value of $24,000 and assessed at $6,000 would pay a city property tax of about $125.50. This would be an increase of about $7.70 over last year.

County Assessor Philip Watson will deliver his official assessment figures to the city about mid-August, and the actual tax rate will be determined at that time.

Friday's adoption of the budget came after about an hour and a half of discussion, primarily involving questions about certain aspects of operations of some city departments.

Councilwoman Renee B. Simon and Councilman James H. Wilson inquired as to the extent of proposed affirmative-action activity in the coming year.

Roger Keast, chief examiner of the Civil Service Board, said reviews of civil service examination results indicate that they are "fair and equitable" and said the department plans to increase its work toward hiring and promotion of minority group city workers.

Wilson said he would like to see funds earmarked to provide for an affirmative-action officer, and Mansell assured the council that "we can make as much money available to this program as the council wishes."

The city manager said an individual has been appointed in each city department to coordinate the affirmative-action program in that department.

Discussion also was held, briefly, about the city's alcohol and drug rehabilitation programs. W. O. Talley, head of administrative management, pointed out that the budget calls for about $1.28 million for alcohol and drug rehabilitation and diversion programs, as compared to about $1.6 million for all other health services.

At Thursday's meeting, councilmen approved allocations to 30 community groups for a total of $696,854, an increase of about $52,000 over what had been in Mansell's preliminary budget. City administrators said, however, this would not require any upswing in the tax rate.

In approving salary increases last month for all 4,700 city workers, the council had committed about $4.8 million in tax funds, but this already had been included in the preliminary budget.

Vice Mayor Bert Bond, who was presiding Friday in the absence of Mayor Edwin W. Wade, commented that there has been "quite a bit of talk recently by police officers and other city employees about parity between police officers' and firemen's salaries."

HE ASKED that the city manager make an in-depth study of the matter. "If we're going to do it on police and fire, I think we should do it on everybody," said Wilson.

A motion by Councilman E. F. Cruchley, chairman of the council's salary and finance committee, called for the study only on police and firemen, however. It was adopted on a 5-1 vote. Councilman Thomas J. Clark voted "no," and Councilmen Don Phillips and Wayne B. Sharp were out of the chamber at that moment.

Mansell had told the council earlier that much of the increase in the budget comes because of "uncontrollable" cost increases and demands for new and expanded services.

The total expenditures of $211.4 million include the $44.3 million budget of the Harbor Department, the $28.4 million Gas Department budget and $11.4 million for the Water Department, all of which support themselves from revenue and get no tax aid.

It also includes revenue from oil operations. This encompasses $30 million from the tideland revenue fund and $22.3 million from the tideland operating fund.

Highlighting new and expanded services for fiscal 1974-75 will be completion and opening of neighborhood facilities centers in West Long Beach, the central area and North Long Beach. They will provide medical and child care and a variety of social services at community level.

THE $38 million Pacific Terrace Center convention complex, now out for bid, is the major item among $97.5 million in capital projects scheduled this fiscal year.

Funds also are earmarked for expansion of the Long Beach Fire Department paramedic program, and Mansell said revitalization of downtown Long Beach "will receive special attention."

Hayes off to NACO meeting

Our L.A. Bureau Supervisor James Hayes is scheduled to leave for Miami Beach Sunday to attend the annual convention of the National Association of Counties (NACO).

Hayes is chairman of NACO's Energy Steering Committee and will report to the convention on the work being done by the newly formed Project Independence committee charged with developing plans to make the nation self-sufficient in energy.

Fire station now a museum

The old Los Alamitos Fire Station, closed last year when a new and larger headquarters was built, has been given to the City of Los Alamitos for use as a museum.

Surprise guilt plea in 9-year-old slaying

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Lester E. Browning Jr., 41, former Orange County probation officer, pleaded guilty late Friday to a slaying nine years ago — after a Santa Ana Superior Court jury could not agree on his guilt.

Browning admitted to voluntary manslaughter for the death of Albert Wilborn, 43, on July 3, 1965.

Browning, on trial in Judge H. Warren Knight's court, made the surprise plea after the jury reported it could not agree on a verdict. The court, rather than declare a mistrial at once, polled the jury and found all jurors favored a conviction, but disagreed only on the penalty.

Nine jurors said they thought the crime was voluntary manslaughter, two said it was second-degree murder and another said was a first degree crime.

The court summoned Prosecutor Robert Chatterton and Deputy Public Defender Ronald Butler into chambers, and when they emerged, they agreed to accept Browning's plea to voluntary manslaughter, and the court set Aug. 9 as date for sentencing.

Browning's penalty could be prison for from one to 10 years, with another five years added because the slaying was with a gun; however, the law adding this penalty as mandatory was not in effect at the time Wilborn was gunned down after a dinner party at the home of Browning's then estranged wife, now Mrs. Joan Wert.

Browning, who fled after the shooting July 3, 1965, was a fugitive for more than eight years. He was arrested in Seattle last fall, when he became involved in a minor altercation.

Lost dog was late wife's gift

By MARY NEISWENDER
Staff Writer

Long Beach truck driver Bert Winney has had a classified ad running for the past three weeks:

"LOST! Germ. shep. 3 wks ago. Med size. Black & brown. We love him! Answers to 'Whiskey' $250 Rew. Vle LB El & PCH 599-5738."

Whiskey was a present from his wife — payment of a bet she had lost on a football game.

His wife died a year ago, and a month ago someone stole Whiskey.

"I've got two children, but they're grown and living in Northern California," the 48-year-old Winney says, "so Whiskey is the only one I've got left."

The dog, who had a choke chain and license, was taken out of the back yard of his home at 1915 Palmer Court, Winney says, while he was working.

"Someone just opened the gate and took him about four weeks ago now, and I've had all the kids in the neighborhood out looking for him and big signs posted all over, but it hasn't done any good."

The advertisement, he says, has brought in a lot of responses about found dogs, but "none of them were my dog."

Winney, who works "about 16 hours a day" driving a long-line truck, says he received the dog as a gift from his wife, Billie Jean, about three years ago as payment of a bet she had lost to him on a football game. The bet, he says, was for a fifth of whiskey, but instead she brought him the then-small dog from the Long Beach Pound. They named the half-breed dog Whiskey.

Exactly a year ago, Winney says, his wife, accompanied by the dog, went to the grocery store. His wife never returned. She died of a massive heart attack en route to the market.

"There's a lot of sentimental attachment about that dog," Winney admits frankly, "so money is no object — I'd double the reward if necessary. I just want Whiskey back."

The dog admittedly is "friendly with everybody" and will answer to his name, Winney says, so identification would be comparatively easy. What isn't easy, he says, is not having him home.

Angela Lansbury will be honored

The 10th Chicago International Film Festival will hold a Tribute to Angela Lansbury Monday night.

Rex Reed will host the program, which will include clips from such films as "Gaslight," "The Picture of Dorian Gray" and "The Manchurian Candidate."

$80,000 grant to young film makers

The American Film Institute has awarded more than $80,000 to young filmmakers in the latest cycle of Independent Film-maker Grants. Individual awards range as high as $10,000.

Included in the list of 10 film makers are Karen Arthur, Los Angeles, who will complete "Legacy," a feature length film which explores the tragedy of the affluent housewife; David Gottlieb, Los Angeles, for a documentary on Morro Bay entitled "Tomorrow Bay";

Patrick O'Neill, Los Angeles, who will make an experimental film on Westerns, "Celluloid Saddle," and Jacqueline Sturman, Los Angeles, who will complete a dramatic film about an aspiring female rock singer, "Reverend Mary."

A total of 125 film-makers have now received AFI Independent Film-maker Grants totaling more than $890,000. The program is funded by the National Endowment for the Arts.

S.F. festival directors

The San Francisco International Film Festival has announced the appointment of three associate directors to its staff: Lorena Cantrell, administration and programming; Mark Chase, publicity and programming; and Martin Rubin, tributory programs.

George Gund continues as chairman of the organization, and Claude Jarman, in his eighth year with the event, will serve as vice chairman and treasurer.

As in the past, the festival program will feature 23 feature premieres, representing countries all over the world, and at least five tribute programs.

The Film Festival, now in its 18th year, will take place at the Palace of Fine Arts Theater from Oct. 16-27.

PAPILLON — A dramatic tale of imprisonment and escape from Devil's Island. Based on Henri Charrier's bestseller book. With Steve McQueen, Dustin Hoffman. (PG)

man and Victor Jory. (PG)

AMERICAN GRAFFITI — A funny and touching story set in 1962 involving California high schoolers' activities on a September evening. With Richard Dreyfuss. (PG)

BUSTING — Elliott Gould and Robert Blade in a burlesque of vice officers at work. (R)

WALKING TALL — A Tennessee lawman crusades against organized crime. With Joe Don Baker and Elizabeth Hartman. (R)

THUNDERBOLT AND LIGHTFOOT — Criminal and con man Clint Eastwood teams with young drifter Jeff Bridges in staging a holdup in this contemporary tale. With George Kennedy. (R)

THE STING — Excellent. Funny, suspenseful and at times touching at 1930s con men Robert Redford and Paul Newman set up the elaborate swindle of a rackets chief. With Robert Shaw. (PG)

MAME — Lucille Ball stars in the flamboyant title role in this musical based on Patrick Dennis' novel and the Broadway smash. With Beatrice Arthur and Robert Preston. (PG)

OLD YELLER — A Walt Disney film about a farm family in early Texas and the big rough-cut range dog that protects them from wilderness dangers. With Dorothy McGuire and Fess Parker. (G)

THE THREE MUSKETEERS — A rousing version of the Dumas tale with Oliver Reed, Raquel

Welch, Richard Chamberlain, Faye Dunaway and Charlton Heston. (PG)

WHAT'S UP DOC? — The high-spirited adventures of eccentric Barbra Streisand and vague, bespectacled Ryan O'Neal at a musicologists' convention in San Francisco.

BLAZING SADDLES — An often hilarious and bawdy parody of traditional western films. With Mel Brooks, Cleavon Little, Gene Wilder, Harvey Korman and Madeline Kahn. (R)

THE EXORCIST — William Blatty's shocking drama about a young girl possessed by the Devil. Directed by William Friedkin. With Max von Sydow, Ellen Burstyn, Linda Blair, Jason Miller and Lee J. Cobb.

Some other superstars

Not a black film, says Cosby—it's American

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What happens when black superstars band together to make a film? They are misunderstood, asserts comedian Bill Cosby.

The film is "Uptown Saturday Night," and it stars Sidney Poitier, Cosby, Harry Belafonte, Flip Wilson, Richard Pryor, Calvin Lockhart, Roscoe Lee Browne, Paula Kelly and others.

POITIER put the project together and directed it for First Artists, in which he is a partner with Barbra Streisand, Steve McQueen, Dustin Hoffman and Paul Newman.

"Uptown Saturday Night" opened to excellent business in New York and Chicago, but some of the reviews have been dismaying.

"As black film makers, we are subject to a condition in which things get pushed out of proportion," Cosby observed.

"In the first place, this is not a black film made by blacks for black audiences. We are Americans, and we made the picture to be seen and enjoyed by Americans."

Cosby was especially piqued by criticisms that "Uptown Saturday Night" repeated the old movie stereotype of eye-bugging by black comics.

"THE COLOR of the skin of a black man," said the comedian in a pedagogical manner, "gives more prominence to the whiteness of the eyes than does the pinkish tinge of the white man's skin."

Watch George Segal or Jack Nicholson or Walter Matthau or Jack Lemmon when they are doing comedy and you will note that their eyes do indeed bug out. It is only natural in comedy to open your eyes wider.

Most of the reviews of "Uptown Saturday Night" in New York were favorable (11 pro, 1 con, 3 no opinion), but Cosby complained that "we as black Americans tend to be auditioning every time we make a movie."

"Nobody talks about a 'white movie.' But whenever blacks do a film, the critics ask 'Is it a black movie? Is it real?'"

"Well, I'll tell you what a real black movie would be: two hours of sorrow, poor people, roaches, being called names and no place to go."

"UPTOWN Saturday Night" tells about a fun-loving pair (Poitier and Cosby) who lose their money in a night club heist and encounter adventures in trying to recover the dough.

The film was designed as "sheer entertainment," Cosby insisted, "but because we are black, we are compared to Amos 'n' Andy, or anybody who made laughs in the 1940s."

Cosby, 37, was here briefly to talk about the film and to tidy up some business matters. He once made Los Angeles his home. Now his fulltime residence is in Greenfield, Mass. He moved his wife and four children there three years ago so he could study for a Ph.D. at the University of Massachusetts School of Education.

THE NOTION of a show biz superstar returning to college was greeted with dubiety along the Las Vegas and Sunset strips. But Cosby reports that next year he will receive his doctorate. He pays for his education by telling stories about 20 weeks a year in the Nevada casinos and in theaters across the country — "small places, seating about 2,200; I never was comfortable playing to 16,000 people."

Cosby is often asked, "What are you going to do with your doctorate?"

"People think it must be good for something, like taking it to the drug store and turning it in for toothpaste," he said.

"I don't know what I'm going to do with it. Already I've had enough reward in hearing my mother say with tears on her face, 'Thank heaven he's got something to fall back on.'"

Dutch organist at Claremont

Dutch organist Bernhard Steinvort will perform at the Claremont Presbyterian Church, 1111 N. Mountain Ave., Claremont, Sunday afternoon at 4. His program will be devoted to music by J. S. Bach and Dutch composers. This appearance marks Steinvort's Southland debut.

Starts in Anaheim Tuesday

Christian convention will entertain no resolutions

By BOB ANDREW

Staff Writer

An expected 24,000 Christians who refuse to be labeled by any other name will overflow the Anaheim Convention Center Tuesday through Friday for the 35th annual North American Christian Convention.

The NACC is the largest such gathering in the world, according to Convention President Thomas W. Overton, senior minister of the First Christian Church in Huntington Beach.

Like most conventions, this one will have more meetings and study sessions than any one person could possibly attend. Daily sessions will run from an 8:45 a.m. prayer meeting to a musical afterglow from 10 to 11 p.m.

The hours between will be filled with seminars, workshops, worship sessions, an art exhibit, Bible quiz, hurried snacks, luxurious banquets and eventual exhaustion.

However, Overton explained, this convention will be distinctly different than those of denominational groups in that no resolutions on social issues or doctrinal positions will be discussed.

Instead, the convention's purpose centers around the worship of Jesus as the Christ and the training of individual Christians for more devoted service to His cause, Overton continued.

This pattern reflects the historic thrust of the so-called "Restoration Movement" — a native American fellowship of Christians who trace their roots to the 1809 "Declaration and Address" of Alexander Campbell in which he opposed denominational separations and stressed the unity of all Christians when they follow the New Testament pattern of worship.

Churches associated with the movement generally fall into three categories: 1. the Disciples of Christ, which in recent years has taken on progressively more of the aspects of a Protestant denomination, 2. the independent Christian Churches and Churches of Christ, which remain separate from that denominational trend, and 3. the non-instrumental Churches of Christ, which are opposed to the use of musical instruments during worship.

Those involved in the convention come primarily from the independent group.

"We are a people of approximately 1 million around the world, but we are distinctly undenominational in that there is no central headquarters, no overlord except Christ," said Overton. "Each church is entirely self-governed within the individual congregation, yet there is a unity that comes about because each church seeks to pattern itself after the New Testament order."

No congregation "sends delegates" to the convention — although some may pay the expenses of their minister — and individual Christians throughout the world pay their own expenses and are welcomed as brothers in Christ regardless of present or previous denominational background, Overton explained.

Reflecting that concept, several of the major speakers come from outside the "Independent Churches."

As examples Overton mentioned Dr. David L. Hocking, pastor of the First Brethren Church, Long Beach, leading a workshop on "God Still Cares for Preaching Today"; Dr. William Stewart (co) McBirnie, senior minister of the United Community Church of Glendale and instructor at Fuller Theological Seminary, conducting a workshop on "Motivation for Church Leadership" and John Allen Chalk, an Abilene, Tex. attorney who was formerly a minister in the non-instrumental churches, the main speaker Wednesday morning.

Most widely known speaker will be former astronaut James B. Irwin of Apollo 15. He will speak three times Friday evening: at banquets for teen-age and college youth and in a greeting to the closing session.

If there is no controversy to attract opposing partisans, why do so many people gather from all 50 states and dozens of foreign lands for the convention?

"There is a sense of success — a sense of unity — that comes from participating in a large meeting of fellow Christians from all over the world that can not be conveyed any other way," Overton explained.

He added that he realized that "a sense of unity often is not newsworthy" but that "there is tremendous appeal in presenting the New Testament Church without division, not seeking to establish another church but to drop all divisive factors and unite all churches in the body of Christ."

"Since we have no denominational headquarters to look to, the convention establishes a sense of direction our people might not otherwise obtain," he continued. "It gives us a chance to realize that Christ is our head and we are a part of that church which He loved and for which He gave himself, as it says in Ephesians, 'that He might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word, that He might present it to Himself a glorious church not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish.'"

Each of the topics for the speakers in the main sessions was chosen with deliberate care, Overton said, to deal with some of the modern challenges to the church and provide inspiration for individual Christians in meeting these concerns:

"We are as concerned individually as anyone else over such questions as higher education or birth control," Overton observed, "but we want to remind people that the mission of the church is to save the lost."

'Glass Church' celebrates 25th

That seemingly built-in part of the Palos Verdes Peninsula, Wayfarers' Chapel—"the Glass Church"—sitting perfectly right where it must over the ocean, was in fact only a gleam in its builder's eye as recently as 1949.

On July 17 of that year, actor Charles Laughton, stood on the site and read from Psalm 107, as only he could read: "Then they were glad because they had quiet, and he brought them to their desired haven." Nearly two years later, in May, 1951, the chapel was open to the public. Since that day more than 13 million people have visited it.

The wayfaring public is invited to help celebrate the 25th anniversary of the dedication Sunday at 11 a.m., with the service following the original one of 1949, says the pastor, Rev. Harvey A. Tafel. Following the service lunch will be served for all in the Visitors Center.

The celebration will continue Monday through Wednesday at 8 p.m. Dr. Robert Calatrello of Cal State Dominguez Hills, who did his doctoral dissertation on Emanuel Swedenborg, founder of the chapel's denomination, will speak Monday. On Tuesday, "The Gospel Lights," from Long Beach First Pentecostal Church of God, will present a program, and Wednesday Mrs. Harriet Wood, Long Beach harpist, will perform. The film "Wayfarer" will also be shown. It was made on location at the chapel. A reception will follow each program.

The chapel was designed of redwood beams, glass and native stone by Lloyd Wright to blend with the area and reflect the founder's philosophy. At night the tower with its lighted cross can be seen many miles to sea. It includes a biblical garden with some of the plants mentioned in the Bible. The chapel and grounds are open daily for prayer and meditation from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Mission head

Rev. L.E. Maxwell, founder and president of Prairie Bible Institute of Alberta, Canada, which has sent forth 1,750 missionaries to foreign lands, will speak Sunday, 6 p.m. in North Long Beach Brethren Church, 60th and Orange. A well known conference speaker, he has spoken all over the world. He will tell of his call as a youth to go to Alberta and found the institute. The movie "Peace Child," about the work of missionaries with the Savi cannibal tribe of Indonesia, will be shown.

Busy First Methodist helps feed the hard-pressed elderly

By LES RODNEY
Religion Editor

The first morning Rev. Galal Gough drove to First United Methodist Church as new pastor one year ago, he saw an old woman eating out of a garbage can behind the church at Fifth and Pacific.

The following week he attended a conference on problems of the aging. He found the Long Beach Economic Opportunities Commission vigorously pressing to get this city in on a federally funded nutritional program for the needy elderly. It was a winning fight.

First Methodist, which had already lived up to its responsibilities as a downtown institution by pioneering a Senior Neighborhood Center seven years ago, hiring a minister to run it when federal funding ran out, was selected as one of the five feeding sites in the Long Beach nutritional program.

leaving her with almost no food money.

"We helped her find a more economical place to live," the minister relates. "Then she was hospitalized. Since coming home, she is not strong enough to come here for meals, so she has had to delivered to her room each weekday. She is very much alone, and very grateful."

Orpha Bon says the people in the program "need the fellowship—and they definitely need the food!"

There is no religion involved in the program, Gough notes. "Other than that the Christian church should help people in need. Jesus had compassion, how can we be Christians and not have it?"

THE TALL NATIVE Californian (born in Riverside) is impatient with the endless hassle about whether the church's mission is properly prayer and salvation or secular social concerns.

"Prayer and action have an indispensable relationship," he says. "Action without prayer grows shallow and superficial. Prayer without action is disembodied and unfulfilled."

He likes to say that spiritual life nurtures outgoing action.

His first five weeks at First Methodist were devoted to a systematic study of prayer and the life of Jesus, culminating in a weekend prayer mission attended by 200. This emphasis has been maintained.

Gough came here from six years at First Church of Santa Ana in one of Methodism's "move 'em around" times. The Santa Ana church was known during his ministry for community involvement, some perhaps of the eyebrow-raising variety for Orange County.

There was a Teen Mother program, Mental Health Activity Center, Parents Anonymous, plus a council on family relations and the establishing of a Wesley day care center for pre schoolers and atypical children. Gough chaired the Santa Ana Human Relations Commission and presented a resolution to the City Council which led to the county's first Housing Authority.

ASKED HOW Orange County received these activities, he smiled. "Orange County is changing from the image many people have. I'm grateful for the opportunity to contribute a little to that change. You know, conservative people can be moved when they see the needs in human terms, on the local level. It is the task of the church to wake people to the needs around them—not only the physical, but the spiritual, moral and social. I give all of these equal weight."

Practicing what he preaches, Gough gave his time to the campaign for equal opportunity for all in Santa Ana by working with the Affirmative Action Advisory Board, and to the Southern California Billy Graham Crusade in '69, for which he chaired the 3,000-member council of ministers.

After his maiden year in Long Beach, in addition to his role with the elderly nutritional project, he is on the board of the Retired Seniors Volunteer Program, is president of the board of COMMIT (Center for Metropolitan Mission In-Service Training), and active with the Red Cross and United Way advisory council.

First Church's activities include its ongoing Senior Center with Tuesday and Friday events, Laubach Literacy program, Alonon (spouses of alcoholics), cheer baskets to shut-ins, and now the church's own woman missionary to Japan. The church also involves itself with others in cooperative missions, such as a tutorial program for those who never finished school, along with Covenant Presbyterian, Trinity Lutheran, St.

Luke's Episcopal and First Congregational.

As for differences between Santa Ana and Long Beach, Gough comments: "I find Long Beach more progressive in some ways, it already has a Housing Authority and redevelopment program for example. But it needs more attention to the plight of so many of its senior citizens. This is a whole field of great concern which is not being adequately met."

FIRST CHURCH was organized in October, 1884, making it probably the city's first congregation, and a celebration is planned this fall. In year 90 the word is good.

"Contrary to what you hear about downtown churches, attendance and income are on the upward side," reports the pastor cheerfully. "I wanted a downtown assignment when transfer time came. People are looking more and more for challenge, which you find in a downtown church, the kind of challenge that may not exist in the more placid suburbs."

The church, he says, has programs for all ages, with Sunday school, junior and senior high and college young people, and "a good young married class."

Do the generations mix well?

He nodded. "The elderly are remarkably loving of the youth. One member who passed away recently left $3,000 for the youth recreation program. Older members turn out when our young people put on an event. More than a fourth of the members turned out last week for a youth ice cream social for the benefit of camping for kids."

Mrs. Gough, former drum majorette at Texas Christian University, was talked into putting on a twirling exhibition for the event. The Goughs are parents of four daughters, three of whom will be in Poly High next term as sophomore, junior and senior. The girls like Poly, reports dad, think the teachers are especially good.

Chat concluded, back to work. Busy church, busy minister. He likes it that way. "If you say Christ is Lord, then He is Lord of everything. Therefore the church should be concerned with all. To compartmentalize religion is the worst kind of blasphemy."

Shekinah at Auditorium

Brant Baker, 28-year-old minister who leads the Shekinah Fellowship of Long Beach, returns to Municipal Auditorium tonight at 7:30 for his monthly "divine healing service," which is open to the public.

Music will be by the Shekinah choir of over 100 voices, and an orchestra. There will be gospel singing by the congregation and prayer for the sick and afflicted, according to the sponsors. In addition to the monthly Auditorium service, Baker leads a Saturday night Shekinah rally at Neighborhood Foursquare Church, 11th and Junipero.

The religion pages welcome letters from readers on topics of general religious interest—controversial or non-controversial.

FIVE DAYS A week one hundred of the area's financially squeezed older men and women enjoy a good lunch at the church. Orpha Bon, church member for 31 years and a leader in the Christian Concern arm of United Methodist Women, look over the full time supervisory role, as a volunteer. Other members help out.

"One man who had retired from his job now works without pay on this all week," Rev. Gough said in a chat this week.

The church handled 175 seniors at first, but had to trim it to 100. In the painful pruning process, Gough says, the most elderly were generally kept. Some of them cannot see very well. One is blind. Several with sick spouses come to the church to arrange for bringing a hot meal home with them. There was one 87-year-old woman whose rent had been increased,

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

When you're uptight and tense

It was late morning in a big hospital. Agitated by an irritating personal problem, the human being behind the surgeon's impassive countenance was really tensed up. This was the setting for a dramatic human experience.

Heading toward the operating room the surgeon found himself wishing that he might postpone this final operation of the day. The patient, a twenty-year-old girl, was in critical condition and the operation would be a delicate and demanding one. He told himself that perhaps he ought to put it off—tense as he felt.

But resolutely he put the thought out of mind. He had a job to do and it couldn't be delayed. So he proceeded to wash, gown and ready himself. Then something happened that drew off tension from him and good.

THE PATIENT was wheeled in and an assistant prepared to administer the anesthetic. Looking into the strikingly beautiful face of the young woman on the operating table, the nurse wondered if the girl, so relaxed and smiling, realized the seriousness of her condition. "Breathe normally and count slowly," she directed in a kindly voice.

"Nurse, would you mind, if I said the 23rd Psalm before you give the anesthetic?"

Bishop will ordain deacon at St. Luke's

The congregation of St. Luke's Episcopal Church will witness the ordination to the diaconate of L. Lamont Wiltse Sunday at 10 a.m., with Rt. Rev. Robert C. Rusack, bishop of the diocese, leading the rite, usually held in St. Paul's Cathedral of Los Angeles.

Wiltse, son of Dr. and Mrs. Leon L. Wiltse, was a member of the St. Luke's Choristers for seven years. He was educated at local schools, Northwestern University and School of Religion at Claremont.

Following the ritual examination by the bishop, he will be vested with the stole and be presented with a copy of the Bible, traditional symbols of the office.

The ceremony will take on an ecumenical touch with the participation of Rev. Dr. Paul Woudenberg of First Methodist of Santa Monica, formerly of Cal Heights Church here, who is a brother-in-law of Wiltse, and will preach the ordination sermon. The new deacon will spend an intern year at the diocesan offices and will assist at St. Paul's.

The nurse hesitated. "Let her say it," said the surgeon. "It might do us all good."

In a confident, sweet voice the patient repeated the great old words: "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want." Stillness hung in the air of the operating room.

"He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake ..."

The silence deepened as she continued: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me."

Pausing in his preparations the surgeon listened intently with the others. Then came the words, "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever." They got through to him. Suddenly his tension seemed to leave him. He felt peaceful and renewed. He actually found himself glad for the opportunity to help this wonderful girl.

Standing beside the operating table he looked down at her and said gently, "Young lady, God and you and I are going to take care of this little matter." — and they did, successfully.

Afterward the surgeon said he had never before realized that perhaps the best method for removing tension is to allow oneself confidently to fall back on a higher power, as the girl did so simply.

ACTUALLY do we need to be upset or nervous? Surely we were never meant to live under nervous tension and high pressure as so many do. Certainly human beings were not designed to crack up but, rather, to enjoy controlled living. Relaxed faith is one answer to uptightness.

Remember when you were a child your father took you by the hand when you were afraid? When you get right down to it, all of us basically are still children in this world which is so full of problems. But the great father will indeed guide and protect as we trust in Him.

Those who live by such confidence learn, for a fact, that life can be handled better on a relaxed basis. No human being can live very successfully who tries to cope with difficulties when uptight and tensed up, so it is important to realize that a calm feeling always siphons off tension.

If in doubt about what we publish on the religion pages and what we don't, call and ask us.

Dr. Bietz here

Dr. Arthur L. Bietz, well known author, lecturer, educator and psychologist, will speak Sunday, 10:45 a.m. at the Church of Religious Science, meeting in the Crest Theater, 4275 Atlantic Ave. His topic is "How to Understand Yourself." Author of 18 books, and listed in "Who's Who in American Education," his lectures are reported to be entertaining as well as informative.

Celebrate 25th in North L.B.

Bible Presbyterian Church, 37th and Elm, will celebrate its 25th anniversary Sunday. It began with services in a mortuary and met for years in the North Long Beach American Legion Hall.

The present structure was completed in 1958. Rev. Robert V. Dickerson, who was with the church during construction, will attend the service.

Mormons break Cypress ground

A groundbreaking ceremony will be held today at 9 a.m. for a new million-dollar Stake Center for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints at Orange Avenue near Grindley Avenue in Cypress.

The center, third to be built by the Mormons within a three mile radius in 10 years, will serve the LDS in Cypress, La Palma and Buena Park.

Ordained at 74

Rev. Joseph E. Mayer of Santa Ana, who is 74, will be ordained to the priesthood in ceremonies Wednesday, 6:30 p.m. in St. Anselm of Canterbury Episcopal Church, Garden Grove. Bishop Robert Rusack will preside.

WORLD EVANGELISM MEET

To reach the 2 billion

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Loaded with facts, findings and theories about the status of Christianity in the world, evangelical leaders meet in Lausanne, Switzerland Tuesday to plan strategies for "reaching the unreached" around the earth.

It's a big order. More than 2 billion people — over two-thirds of the globe's 3.5 billion population — have never actually been offered the gospel message, according to preliminary studies compiled for the occasion.

But the International Congress on World Evangelism July 16-25, bringing together leaders of the evangelistic wing of global Protestantism, aims to coordinate personnel and techniques for doing the job.

"We are persuaded that God has brought us to one of history's great moments, that the hour has come for Christians everywhere — to unite in bold new efforts... to make disciples of all nations," says the call to the congress.

It is described as the most geographically representative evangelical assembly ever held, including 2,700 picked participants from most Protestant denominations in 150 countries.

Preparations have been going on for months, with a dozen weighty study papers circulated among participants and voluminous, detailed reports readied on the extent of belief — and lack of it — in each country of the world.

In one preliminary document, Rev. Dr. Peter Beyerhaus, of the University of Tubingen, Germany, urges the formation of a continuing world-wide association to evangelize "the unreached two billion."

He says the target should be "to reach every living person with the good news within the next 10 years." At present, there are about 1 billion Christians in the world, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox.

The congress was planned by an international, interdenominational committee headed by Anglican Bishop A. Jack Dain, of Sydney, Australia, with U.S. evangelist Billy Graham a key influence in the affair.

However, North Americans will make up only about a fourth of the participants, with a heavy proportion coming from "third world" areas of Africa, Latin America and Asia.

The theological basis and techniques for evangelism are special topics for consideration. Advance discussions have produced a special jargon, such as "E-1," "E-2" and "E-3" evangelism, meaning respectively evangelism in one's own culture, in similar cultures and across cultural lines.

In one study paper, Rev. George W. Peters, of Dallas Theological Seminary in Texas, cites a score of different evangelistic approaches, such as dialogue, coffee house, camping, household, mass media and direct-confrontation evangelism.

"We are experiencing a never-before witnessed proliferation of patterns of evangelism," he says. "Novel and original ways are being designed and practiced..."

But he says the field still is crippled by being

GOINGS ON

The Come Alive Singers, on a three month, 15-state tour from Cincinnati Bible College, will present a concert Monday and Tuesday, 7:30 both nights, at PARKCREST CHURCH OF CHRIST, 5950 Parkcrest Ave. Program includes both secular and sacred songs.

Dr. Stuart LeRoy Anderson, chancellor of Pacific School of Religion, Berkeley, will be pulpit guest Sunday, 10 a.m. in FIRST CONGREGATIONAL, Third and Cedar.

Susan Gift, folk singer, and the New Creation Trio, will present a concert Sunday, 7 p.m. in LAKEWOOD FIRST BAPTIST, 5336 Arbor Road. The Summer Youth Choir, directed by Bruce Eldridge, will make its debut.

A series of "town forums" on social and political issues will get under way Sunday, 7:30 p.m. in CHRIST UNITED METHODIST, 14706 S. Pioneer Blvd., Norwalk with representatives of the United Farm Workers telling their side of the story and explaining the boycott drive against head lettuce, certain brands of wine and grapes. A second forum later will bring representatives from the Teamsters Union and growers.

Dr. Phil Shuler will tell of his change from a stuttering, stammering youth to a minister who has preached across the land for 20 years, tonight at 7:15 and Sunday at 10:50 a.m. and 7:15 p.m. in BETHANY BAPTIST of Seal Beach, 151 Marina Drive. Music will be by members of the Shuler family.

The church of Revelation of Anaheim will hold its "First Annual Psychic Fair" next Saturday, July 20, from 1 to 9 p.m. at the church, 138 W. Lincoln Ave., with $1 admission asked at the door.

limited mostly to specialists, with the main manpower resource for evangelism — the masses of believing church members — still to be tapped.

Several leaders urge that evangelism must be more sensitively adapted to varying cultures, rather than being confined to westernized approaches. A genuine "cross-cultural evangelism" is essential, says Rev. Ralph D. Winter, of Fuller Seminary of Pasadena.

Rev. Francis A. Schaeffer, of Switzerland, says evangelism must stress intellectual content and get away from implying that people should believe without asking questions.

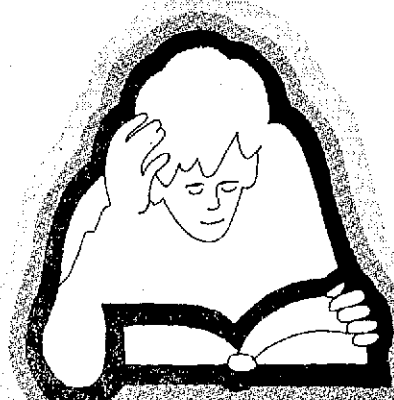

Such an attitude "is less biblical and eventually it will be less spiritual because it will not involve the whole man," he says.

How to discover God's goodness.

By seeking the spiritual meaning of the Bible, you can find new views of God's goodness and power. This discovery can bring better health, happier relationships, greater joy.

One way to find the Scriptures' spiritual meaning is through the Bible Lessons in the Christian Science Quarterly. Each week's lesson has passages from the Bible and the Christian Science textbook — Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy.

You're welcome to read the Bible Lesson here, or borrow books to study at home. Stop in this week. Find out how much the Bible can mean to you.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Sees you well on your way into a successful campaign. Increased responsibility proves feasible... your viewpoint broadens, likewise your circle of business and personal contacts. Earning power eventually increases as well. Today's natives usually rise sensibly from rather unpretentious beginnings, merit every advance as they go.

Aries (March 21-April 19): There are many levels of expense - you can have a great time doing some of the less pretentious things and still find all the company you'd like.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Relax, don't burden the day with material considerations. You've got to put in considerable thought yet before your new contacts will be ready.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Being neat and tidy pays high dividends. Being out and gone early lands you into unaccustomed and interesting situations, much fun. Get home early.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): No matter how well you compete, there's always someone somewhere who does things more lavishly. It's enough that you achieve dignity, simplicity.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Although it's Sunday and you have its special routines to follow, stir yourself and begin setting up your coming week. There's serious work to do.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep physical activities to a moderate level, seek a middle-of-the-road course. Time isn't running out fast - just move more promptly.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can very well go along with the preferences of your family and community for a quiet Sunday of personal satisfaction. Celebrate on general principles.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Naturally, you're impatient, but take the time to savor every golden moment of this simple day of self-fulfillment. Express your faith.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): There's enough to do to keep several people actively busy. Decide from the start just what you will enjoy and concentrate on doing that well.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Make amends where you can, even where you may have been correct. On-going plans are facilitated, may run ahead of schedule - be alert for possible changes.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Overslate your theory and you've got minor problems. Better listen before you proceed, there's another side to the story, and much good news to sustain you.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): For the maximum benefit, stick with what you know and near home base, cultivating relationships, new contacts. Entertaining comes naturally.

Moment at hand for America to enter door closed 41 years

Americans seem to be losing confidence in paper money, mainly because inflation deflates its value.

In purchasing gold abroad, these buyers are adding to the U.S. balance of payments problem, needlessly so in the opinion even of government officials. Why not let them buy gold within the United States, just as they buy lead or sugar or copper or any other commodity?

"It isn't so much an economic question any more as much as one of the inherent freedom that Americans should have," said one economist closely identified with the administration.

"This nation is based on the concept of freedom, free enterprise and private ownership. Why should we be denied this freedom when it is available to everyone else?"

Nevertheless, many critics believe that a sharp rise in the price of gold could bring further troubles for the dollar, despite the official break with gold as a monetary backup to paper currency. It's a myth, they say, that people will ever ignore the trading value of gold and treat it as just another commodity. If inflation continues, they add, people will seek refuge in gold.

Bolstering this belief is the fact that mankind has always sought security in the bright yellow metal, which has been almost deified through the ages.

However, forecasts of a big increase in the price of gold because of Senate and House approval of gold ownership haven't materialized. Three months ago the price was $179.50 an ounce at London. On Thursday it was $138.50.

Cast for 'Rhoda' completed

By BOB MARTIN

Valerie Harper, the delightful Rhoda Morgenstern of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," is going to have her own comedy series on CBS in the fall, as you may have heard.

She'll play the same character, and the name of the series will be "Rhoda." The half-hour comedy show will air on Monday nights and is being produced by Miss Moore's MTM Enterprises.

In the new series, Rhoda no longer will be Mary's neighbor in Minneapolis; instead, she'll live in New York.

Joining Miss Harper and previously announced Nancy Walker in the cast as regulars will be David Groh and Julie Kavner.

Groh will play Joe Conway, a man Rhoda meets during a vacation and falls in love with. Conway is the father of a young child, and he and Rhoda get married within the first two months of the series.

Groh starred in the New York production of the award-winning play "Hot L Baltimore." In addition to having experience on the New York and London stage, he has had regular roles in the daytime TV series "Edge of Night" and "Love Is a Many Splendored Thing." Miss Kavner will be making her TV debut in the role of Brenda Morgenstern, Rhoda's sister. She is an honor graduate of California State University at San Diego, and her acting experience has been primarily in university and community theater productions. She has won the Best Actress award at San Diego's Old Globe Theatre.

JOHN FORSYTHE, who can be seen in the 1974 TV movie repeat "Cry Panic" on Channel 7 at 8:30 tonight, is the star of another TV movie that went into production this week. It is called "The Only Way Is Down" and will be televised in the 1974-75 season as an "NBC World Premiere" film.

Noteworthy about "The Only Way Is Down" is that it's about people trapped by fire on the top floor of a skyscraper — which is the same theme as that of the theatrical movie "The Towering Inferno," which figures to be a major blockbuster on the screen.

The similarity is said to be coincidental — Ed Montagne, who is producing the TV film, says he wrote the original script in 1972.

Here's another interesting coincidence: Forsythe told me several weeks ago in an interview that he'd been offered the role of a U.S. senator who gets trapped by fire in "The Towering Inferno." Instead, he now turns up as the top star of "The Only Way Is Down" as a senior business executive is trapped along with six co-workers by fire.

In the TV film, the building is a 40-story one in Los Angeles; in the other movie, which stars Paul Newman and Steve McQueen, it's a 137-story skyscraper in San Francisco.

"The Towering Inferno" is due to reach theaters before Christmas; "The Only Way Is Down" will probably reach the tube a bit earlier.

JUAN PERON'S widow, Mrs. Isabel Martinez de Peron, who succeeded to the presidency of Argentina upon his death, will be the subject of "Sunday Profile," weekly feature of "NBC Sunday News," airing from 6 to 6:30 p.m. tomorrow on Channel 4.

Israel's Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin will be the guest on ABC's "Issues and Answers" at 1 p.m. Sunday on Channel 7.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., will be the guest on NBC's "Meet the Press" at 3:30 p.m. Sunday on Channel 4.

Hire Moore to resurrect LBSU image

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

Perry Moore declined Friday to put his job—athletic director at Long Beach State—in the construction category.

"Athletic programs aren't made of bricks and mortar," Moore said at a press conference called to announce his appointment as athletic director at LBSU.

"It's how you walk and how you talk, the image you project, that reflects the quality of your athletic program," continued Moore.

"I'm cognizant of the fact that we have two other fine universities just up the road, but I would hope that we would aspire that one day this program will be viewed in the same magnitude as the ones at those institutions."

That would take some building.

"But not of facilities," opined Moore. "I've seen the Long Beach Arena, Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool and Blair Field. Collectively, Long Beach State has available some of the finest facilities in the country."

In announcing Moore's appointment, LBSU president Stephen Horn said, "we think he's the best man in the nation for the job."

"There was great interest expressed in this position, both from people in and out of the field of intercollegiate athletics," continued Horn. "Perry Moore was chosen after an extensive nationwide search."

"The field was narrowed to three final candidates and Perry Moore was the man recommended to me by the committee through dean Jack Shainline."

The athletic situation at Long Beach State—an uncertain financial base and three years of NCAA probation in football and basketball—is not the first difficult one Moore has faced.

When Moore became athletic director at Colorado State in 1968, he inherited a program that was $500,000 in the red, returned it to solvency and at the same time doubled the program.

"We operated on a balanced budget each year I was there and when I left on June 31st the deficit had been reduced to $18,000," reported Moore.

Moore left Colorado State when the Colorado State board of agriculture, which governs the state university, did not renew Moore's contract when it expired on June 30.

He had been involved in a bitter battle for his job in 1972 when all but one CSU coach charged he was interfering with their operations.

During 1973, though, nearly the entire Colorado State staff endorsed the renewal of Moore's contract.

"I'm going to be a very 'visible' athletic director," Moore promised. "I'm going to get to know my coaches, the athletes, the students and every one else involved in the athletic program."

"I'm going to be at practices and I'm going to be aware of everything that's going on."

Moore, who was 43 Friday, succeeds Dr. Lew Comer, who resigned as LBSU athletic director early in May.

A graduate of Maryland, where he was an all-conference selection for three years in basketball and track, has a wife, Peggy, a daughter, Pamela, 17, and a son, Perry Jr., 14.

Moore worked at Maryland and the University of Florida before going to Colorado State.

No progress in NFL strike

Mediator pleased by attitudes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Negotiators for striking National Football League players and the league's 26 teams met for seven hours with federal mediators Friday and failed to make any particular progress toward resolving their very wide dispute, officials said.

Federal mediator James Searce said no date was set for resumption of the talks, which are designed to end the 12-day strike by the NFL Players' Assn., the 1,200-member union of veteran players.

But Searce, who said

no particular progress was made, said he was "encouraged by the constructive attitude on both sides." He said he asked both parties to "reconsider and re-evaluate their positions."

Searce said he was reassessing the negotiations and would be in contact with the owners and the players early next week in hopes of reconvening the negotiations.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the players' union, which has pledged to wipe out the NFL exhibition season if its walk-out is not resolved, said he concurred in Searce's statement and characterized the day-long session as "no progress."

Sources said the two sides in the dispute met face-to-face for less than an hour Friday, and that they spent most of their time in separate rooms, with mediators talking first to one side and then the other. The sources said the two sides met together briefly in the morning and then again just before adjourning for the day.

They also said both sides had agreed to a request from Searce that they quit trading charges and accusations, a move apparently intended to produce a better negotiating atmosphere.

The Friday session was the first meeting between the two warring parties since talks broke off June 26 after it became apparent there would be no immediate agreement on the 63 demands made by the players on March 16.

The players' association went on strike July 1 and has set up picket lines outside the 10 NFL training camps which have opened.

The strike also caused cancellation of the July 26 College All-Star game in Chicago.

Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers, president of the NFLPA, announced before the negotiating session began that the players had raised $65,000 which they will donate to Chicago Tribune Charities, sponsor of the All-Star game which last year produced $212,000 for underprivileged children.

The union had pledged to raise $106,000 by the end of the weekend.

Figueroa makes Bosox eat words

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

BOSTON—The phone was ringing off the hook Friday night in the private dressing room of the visiting team manager at Fenway Park.

First it was Harry Dalton calling to congratulate Dick Williams on his first triumph as the Angel manager and then it was owner Gene Autry's turn.

"Gee," Williams stammered, "I've been waiting ANGEL OF DAY MICKEY RIVERS had three hits, stole three bases and scored three runs as Angels blanked Boston, 7-0."

for your call for two weeks."

It had seemed like two years. Maybe even two decades.

But it finally happened Friday night at Friendly Fenway, a relic from another era and a relic in which the Angels, in this depressing year, can do no wrong.

They clubbed out 13 hits — including home runs by Frank Robinson and Winston Llenas and three doubles — to rout the Boston Red Sox, 7-0, their fourth win in as many games in Beantown.

Eduardo who? The good burghers of Boston were asking the same question prior to the game and the public address announcer couldn't even pronounce his last name correctly.

Eduardo Figueroa sounds like lawn fertilizer, not a major league pitcher, suggested one Boston scribe. He was later observed eating his typewriter.

"The fence...it scare me...I just try to keep ball down," Figueroa said in his halting English as his teammates paraded by in steady succession to offer handshakes.

Player, Nicklaus predicting blazing British Open finish

LYTHAM ST. ANNE'S, England (AP)—A head-to-head duel between the world's two greatest golfers, Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus, looms today in the final round of the British Open golf championship, with the proud British rooting for a local hero.

"It's going to be a hell of a day," said Player, leader through the first three rounds but only three strokes ahead of Britain's Peter Oosterhuis and four to the good of Nicklaus going into the final 18 over the Royal Lytham and St. Anne's course.

"Anything is on from here," said Nicklaus. Player, after sub-par rounds of 69 and 68, cooled a bit in shooting a 75 while Oosterhuis, with birdies on two of the final three holes, had a 73 and Nicklaus charged in with a one-under-par 70 despite a double-bogey 6 on the 15th.

Player and Nicklaus are natural rivals, the only two active men who have won the four major championships—Masters, British and U.S. Opens and PGA. Nicklaus needs only the British to make it a three-time sweep.

Player needs only the U.S. Open to make the slam twice around.

Player admitted that he feared Nicklaus and added that four strokes can be made up on a couple of holes.

"Remember that Bill Casper was seven shots back of Arnold Palmer in the U.S. Open at San Francisco in 1966," Player said. "Four shots mean nothing."

Then he added: "Sure I'm uncomfortable—I'm very nervous."

Nicklaus appeared confident.

"Gary caught me from nine back with two rounds to go at Palm Springs in 1963," he said. "I keep thinking if he could do that I could make up four or five here this time."

After two brilliant rounds, Player's blades proved they were subject to human frailty. His chagrin at this falldown was heightened when he left a ball in a bunker at the 162-yard ninth hole and wound up with a double-bogey 5.

"In 10 years of tournament golf I don't remember blading the ball as I did then," he said. "I hit it like a duffer."

Apodaca cuts Dodgers' lead to 8½ games

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

A season ago at this time the New York Mets were in last place and trailing the National League's Eastern Division leader by 11½ games, but they came on to win the division and then the pennant.

One would assume, then, that Yogi Berra is happy his Mets are in a similar position—last place—now.

"Maybe it looks that way to you," the manager of the Mets said Friday after his team had flattened the Dodgers, 5-2, "but I'd just as soon get out of the cellar...and fast."

"Last year we got all of our injuries out of the way early," continued Yogi, recalling mishaps that had placed eight first-line players on the disabled list at different times during 1973.

"This year we're still having trouble getting our guys together. Tom Seaver still has the bad hip and Bud Harrelson will be out another few days with a broken hand."

Seaver, a former USC star, disappointed a Dodger Stadium turnout of 50,125 Friday night when, because of the hip injury, he had to skip his assignment as the Mets' starting pitcher.

But the Dodger faithful was disappointed even more by Seaver's replacement, Bob Apodaca, a Paramount resident who learned his trade at Cerritos College and L.A. State.

Apodaca stifled the Dodgers on four hits before tiring, and retiring, after six innings.

He was replaced in the seventh inning by Jack

Jury still out in boy's death by faith healing

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI)—A jury deliberated manslaughter charges Friday against a man and his wife who admitted repentantly that their failure to follow the Bible's strictures that love is greater than faith led them to throw away their diabetic son's insulin with fatal consequences.

Lawrence Parker and his wife, Alice, testified at their trial that they cut off insulin shots for 11-year-old Wesley after a faith healer performed a "laying on of hands."

The case went to the jury Thursday following 39 days of testimony that often sounded like something from "The Exorcist," the current novel and movie. Wesley died last Aug. 22. His parents were charged with involuntary manslaughter and child abuse.

Parker, 35, a former employee at the Goldstone space tracking center, said he and his wife were convinced the boy was "possessed by a demon" and that when they threw away the insulin they were following the Biblical injunction to "Walk by faith and not by sight."

Parker testified that he should have taken the counsel of "First Corinthians, 13:13, which says 'There abide these three things: faith, hope and love, and that the greatest of these is love.'"

"...at the time we thought we had to resist the love in our hearts urging us to give Wesley the insulin and to maintain the faith for Wesley's healing. I see now that was a mistake—that our love should have overruled."

In his closing argument, the prosecutor said the minister of the Parker's church, the Assembly of God in Barstow, had warned them that they were mistaken in their beliefs that the son was possessed by a devil and that it was not reasonable to expect miracles.

Mrs. Parker testified that on one occasion the demon spoke from her son's body and said: "We will not let you have the gift." She added: "My son spoke these words but that was not my son speaking."

Said a defense attorney: "Alice Parker has a willingness to believe in God and trust in Him that I'm not sure that many of us really reach."

"We put it on our money, but I don't know how much we really mean it. Mrs. Parker really means it."

Air Board hits 'Little Hoover' panel charge

SACRAMENTO (AP)—The chairman of the State Air Resources Board accused the head of the state's "Little Hoover" commission Friday of being vague and biased in his criticism of the board.

Charles J. Conrad said that Manning Post, chairman of the Commission on California State Government Organization and Economy, may have had several reasons for saying the ARB is doing a poor job.

"The current criticism is instigated by one member of that commission who is involved in a type of business—automobile dealer—and litigation—against two auto manufacturers—that precludes an unbiased approach to the investigation," Conrad said in a statement.

"Moreover, Post has been politically active in the campaign of the Democratic candidate for governor...Personally I feel his current charges are neither unbiased nor nonpartisan," he added.

Post said Wednesday that the ARB was not enforcing new car emission standards properly, wasn't using proper equipment and was taking junkets on state funds.

"We are not certain what Post charged in his statement at the commission meeting. We have only newspaper reports of what he said," Conrad added in a news release.

"We really have only the vaguest idea of what Post charged."

"We want written specifications of Post's charges," said Conrad, a former Republican assemblyman from Sherman Oaks who was appointed to the board after he was defeated by Democrat Howard Berman.

TIME

Because we have the largest selection of new and used cars, trucks and vans of any dealer in Southern Calif.

TROUBLE

Buy a car and ask for our Total Warranty with a 10 day trial exchange. If you're not satisfied in every way, return it and exchange it for a car you like. In addition to this, you get a one year or 12,000 mile warranty on the engine & power train. If anything goes wrong with the transmission, drive shaft, rear axle, water pump, we fix it free!

MONEY!
I'll prove to you we have the lowest prices with the lowest payments!
